Saint Nicholas Society

43 Cedar Street

October 25th, 1916.

Gentlemen:—

The end of the undertaking being well in sight it seems perhaps proper that information be presented to your Committee and, through you, to the membership of the Society, of the measure to which Volume II of the Genealogical Record of the Saint Nicholas Society may be accepted as authenticated historical and genealogical material. It is anticipated that some discrepancies may perhaps be noted in the several "lines of descent" and the Biographical Sketches may appear to be at times in disagreement with the pedigrees.

It should then be set forth that the precedents established with the 1905 edition of the Record have been followed here in this respect; that the genealogical information submitted by the members on their application papers has been accepted with but little revision. It can be easily comprehended how great a delay would have been caused by the research and correspondence necessary to make family data entirely in agreement and wholly accurate. However, such limited coördination as was feasible has been effected. As for the Biographical Sketches, the Editor must assume the responsibility. In many cases the clue was given by the members but the finished article represents considerable further study for which the Society may reasonably expect to stand sponsor. The appearance of inconsistencies and the discovery of errors are perhaps to be expected, but it is hoped that the peculiar limitations and difficulties attendant on the work will be considered.

I should like to take further advantage of this opportunity to express to the Committee my grateful acknowledgments for their courteous and expert interest and support.

Yours very sincerely,

Louis Swift de Forest

Editor.

Committee on Publication,
Saint Nicholas Society
of the City of New York.

IN this year of One Thousand Nine Hundred and Sixteen it seemed to be more than usually fitting that the Saint Nicholas Society, through its very efficient Committee, should add another volume to the Genealogical Record which was issued in 1905. Not even during our Civil War was there, throughout the entire length and breadth of our land, so great a revival of the spirit of American patriotism as there exists today in consequence of its arousing by the great European War, which has caused all of us to consider ourselves and our situation as a Nation more earnestly than has ever been generally done before. From the fact that the City of New York is the metropolis of the continent and, possibly, of the world, interest in the City and its history, and of the men who founded it and sent it on its way to what it has become, is greater than ever. One of the evidences is the fact that, notwithstanding its cosmopolitan character, the inhabitants of the City, of whatever ancestry, have through their representatives given very recent recognition to its Dutch foundation by adopting, after a lapse of fifty years, as the official flag of the City one that is almost identical with the flag of the Saint Nicholas Society in use for very many years.

It is fair to assume that now and hereafter there will be a greater interest, not only in the City but in the Nation at large, in the founders of New Amsterdam, their ideas and their customs, which to a large extent exist today, and are known to everybody through their preservation by this Society.

The writer of this preface has had no part in the work of the Committee but has large personal knowledge of its efforts, of the time taken, and of the enthusiastic devotion to the work shown by Walter Lispenard Suydam as Chairman, all of which will be greatly and appreciatively remembered by the present and future members of the Society.

The Capture of the Slave Ship "Cora"

THE LAST SLAVER TAKEN BY THE UNITED STATES

"IN COMMEMORATION OF THE CHARACTER AND FORTUNATE CLOSE OF THE LATE CIVIL WAR IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, 1861-1865, PRESENTED BY J. E. VAN HEEMSKERCK VAN BEEST, ESQUIRE, TO THE SAINT NICHOLAS SOCIETY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK"

GENEALOGICAL RECORD

BIOGRAPHIES

Christopher Janse Abeel (1621-1684) was born in Amsterdam and was left an orphan by the plague when about twelve years old. He was brought up by the Orphanmasters, being educated in Amsterdam and there taught the trade of a carpenter. Upon his coming of age a friend of his mother's turned over to him the money entrusted to her for that purpose at the time the plague killed Christopher's parents. With this unexpected wealth he bought a stock of hardware and engaged passage for America. He settled at Beverwyck (Albany) in 1651. In 1655 as a master carpenter he built the First Reformed Dutch Church. He was a deacon and the treasurer of the poor fund. In 1665 he went to Holland to receive a legacy from a great uncle and the passport was made out to Stoffle Jans Abeel. He held several offices in Albany, such as magistrate, and in ordinary documents signed his name Stoffle Jans, leaving off his surname, but to documents of importance he added Abeel. On November 22, 1660, he married Neeltje Janse Croon, a native of Holland. His will, dated December 4, 1670, mentions four children. He died in 1684. His son Johannes (1667-1711) was a merchant of importance, a councilman and alderman, and mayor for two terms of Albany. He married Catharina, daughter of David Schuyler and Catherine Ver Planck, in 1694, and moved to New York about 1696 for a few years only.

David Ackerman (1620-1663) was born near Bois-Le-Duc in Dutch Brabant about 1620. He married in 1644 and settled down as a farmer like his father before him. However, being a Protestant, religious persecution made it necessary for him to leave Holland. He sailed in August, 1662, on the Dutch West India ship Fox and reached New Amsterdam on the September 2nd following. At that time his wife and six children were with him. He first lived at the Watergate, New Amsterdam. In 1668 the family was at New Haerlem, but David had been dead since 1663. Abram, the youngest child, married in 1683 at New York Aeltje Van Laer and settled in Bergen County, N. J., in 1694, where some of his descendants remain. Abram D. Ackerman (1755-1796), a great grandson, was a Captain in a New Jersey Regiment in the Revolution.

Jessy Adams, Jr., (1739——) of Scarsdale, N. Y., fought in the Old French War, being enlisted in the Company of Capt. Joshua Bloomer in 1759. He later was a private in the Revolution, serving in the Fourth Regiment of the line.

Pietro Caesar Alberto (1608——) was born at Venice, in June, 1608, as the son of Andrea Alberto and Veronica, his wife. The father belonged to an ancient noble family, many of whose members from the 13th century on had held important offices there and in Florence; he himself was Secretary of the Ducal Chancellery at Venice, and took part in the concluding of the commercial alliance between the Venetians and the Dutch Republics in 1604, which in 1620 became a firm political alliance. Pietro Caesar Alberto arrived via the West Indies at New Amsterdam on the ship de Coninck David on May 30th, 1635. He settled first among the Walloons at the Wallabout, Long Island, and obtained a patent for a plantation there in 1643. In 1639 he made a contract with Pieter Montfoort for the founding of a tobacco plantation near the later Newtown, Long Island. He married on August 24, 1642, in the Reformed Church of New Amsterdam with Judith Magne, daughter of Jean Magne and Martha Chambart, who had arrived on the same ship in 1635. He and his young wife first lived in their house on the Heeregraft (Broad Street) New Amsterdam, but sold this in 1645 and went to live on their Newtown plantation. Part of his Wallabout plantation Alberto sold in 1651 to his brother-in-law Samuel Magne. The children of Pietro Caesar Alberto and Judith Magne born between 1643 and 1654 were, Jan, Martha, Aert, Marie, Francina (who died young), Willem and Francina (the second of the name).

Isaac Allerton (——1659) was born in England about 1585. On account of the persecution which those who preferred an International Reformed Christian Church above an Established National Church had to endure there, he fled to Holland, the Altar of Internationalism, and settled at Leyden in 1609. There he married November 14, 1611, Mary Morris, a refugee from Newbury, England, who bore him between 1612 and 1618 four children. On February 5, 1614, he became a citizen at Leyden. When in 1620 many English refugees sailed from Delftshaven, Holland, on the Mayflower, he and his family, except the youngest child, were among these Pilgrims. Isaac Allerton was the fifth signer of the compact made on board the Mayflower, off Cape Cod, the 11th of November, prior to the landing at Plymouth on December 22, 1620. At Plymouth his first wife died on February 25, 1621, from the hardships suffered on the journey, and he remarried in 1626, Fear, daughter of Elder William Brewster, another Leyden settler. Between 1626 and 1630 he made several ocean voyages to England on behalf of the Plymouth Colony most of whose members were Dutch subjects. When in March, 1635, his "worldly desire" and his liberal and tolerant views in religious matters, caused his banishment from New England, cosmopolitan New Netherland, and above all New Amsterdam with its incomparable intercolonial situation, became almost naturally his home. He had a dwelling house and stores between Fulton and Ferry Streets on the South side of Pearl Street, then the shore of the East River and a wharf for his vessels. He was elected in 1643 as one of the Eight Men. Notwithstanding the treatment received there he continued to serve New England's commercial development without showing preference.

He remained a resident of New Amsterdam until the fall of 1647, when as there were no friendly feelings between him and the new Governor, Peter Stuyvesant, he moved to New Haven. He remained however a New Netherlander and Dutch subject until his death. While he visited New Amsterdam frequently (for the last time in May, 1658), his faithful manager George Woolsey took care of his house and affairs in New Amsterdam, while Govert Loockermans acted as his attorney in his New Netherland transactions in general. When in the spring of 1654, after the publication of a libellous pamphlet in London, English ships, in combination with New England troops, in time of peace, planned a raid upon New Netherland, Isaac Allerton informed Governor Stuyvesant of their design. He died at his New Haven home early in 1659 at the age of 73, having been a Dutch subject for over 45 years. His third wife (the second wife had died at New Haven in 1634) Johanna, a lady of Dutch birth, survived him in their home on the corner of Union and Fair Streets until 1682. Isaac Allerton, Jr., requested settlement of his father's estate in New Amsterdam in December, 1659, which was brought to an end in March, 1661. Mary, one of Isaac Allerton's three daughters, born at Leyden in 1616, died at New Haven in 1699 as the last survivor of the Mayflower passengers.

Richard Ambler (1587-1637) was the son of Thomas Ambler of Kiddington-in-Lindsay near Yorkshire, England, who married on October 16, 1617, and lived at Kirton-in-Holland near Boston, the seaport from which many of the Pilgrims sailed. His son, Richard, sailed for America and settled in Watertown, Mass., 1637, in Weymouth, 1640, in Cambridge, 1660, and then moved to Stamford, Conn. The great-great grandson of Richard, Jr., was born in Stamford, Conn. In 1783 he moved to Milton, N. Y., and is known as being one of the first settlers in that part of this state.

Anna C. Arcularius (1779-1868) was born at New York City, October 26, 1779, and resided in New York State all her natural life. She died at Staten Island, January 20, 1868. She married Frederick Bogardus, a descendant of the Dominie Everardus Bogardus.

Theophylact Bache (1735-1807) was born in Settle in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England. He came to New York City in 1751 under the care of a relative, Mr. Paul Richard. Mr. Richard, at one time Mayor of New York, employed Bache as his assistant. Mr. Bache later became himself a prominent merchant. He was Treasurer of the Chamber of Commerce in 1770, Vice-President in 1771, and President in 1773. He was first a Governor of the New York Hospital and later President. His church was old Trinity, where he was a vestryman. From 1788 to 1799 he served as the President of St. George's Society. In 1803 he retired from active business and spent most of his time at his country residence in Flatbush, Long Island. His marriage to Ann Dorothy, daughter of Andrew Barclay, took place October 16, 1760. His brother, Richard, married Sarah, daughter of Benjamin Franklin.

Joseph Bangs (1713-1757) was born at Harwich, Mass., on January 30, 1713. He was the son of Captain Samuel Bangs (1680-1750), the grandson of Capt. Jonathan Bangs, and the great-grandson of Edward Bangs, who came to Plymouth, Mass., from England in 1623. Joseph Bangs married on September 18, 1735, Thankful Hamblen of Barnstable, Mass., and later moved to New York State, dying at Carmel, Putnam County, in 1757.

Sylvanus Bedell is supposed to be of a family from Wales, appearing at an early period in Hempstead, Long Island. In Colonial times various men of the name held civil offices in Hempstead. The family also sent some of its members to Staten Island and into the Passaic Valley of New Jersey.

Wilhelmus Beekman (1623-1707) was the son of Hendrick Beekman and Mary Baudertius (his second wife), and was born at Hasselt, Overyssel, on April 28, 1623. He came to New York in 1647 on the Princess in the company of Director General Stuyvesant. On September 5, 1649, he married Catalina de Boogh, daughter of Hendrick de Boogh, of Albany. He was Treasurer of the West India Company, one of the two Commissioners to build the wall extending along the present Wall Street; a Schepen, Lieutenant of the Burgher Corps (1652-1658), the Vice-Director of the colony of Swedes on the Delaware River, and Schout and Commissary at Esopus. He took the oath of allegiance to Charles II in 1664 and later (1673) became Lieutenant in the Militia and Deputy Mayor of New York (1681-1683). He occupied various residences, dying at the homestead near the present corner of Pearl and Beekman Streets on September 21, 1707. William and Beekman Streets preserve his name.

Samuel Beeman was of a family descending from William and John Beaumont, of Huguenot ancestry, who were settlers in Connecticut, at Saybrook and Hartford. Their descendants, who are scattered throughout New England, spell the name in many ways. Samuel and Josiah Beeman were in Canaan, Columbia County, New York, the old King's District, before 1753.

James Benedict (1784-1841) was a merchant in New York City from 1804 to 1830, when he retired and removed to Tarrytown, dying there on July 23, 1841. He married Deborah Coles, of New York City, who was born on September 8, 1792, and died on January 29, 1875. His interest in military affairs was very great and his service was long and distinguished. During the second war with England he held commissions in the Eleventh Regiment, being First Lieutenant in 1812 and Captain in 1815. He had been a Second Lieutenant in the Eleventh New York as early as 1810 and advanced through all the grades to the rank of Colonel, from which he was promoted in 1823 to be the Brigadier-General of the First Brigade of Artillery. He became Major-General of the Second Division of New York Artillery in 1826 and retired from the service in 1829. General Benedict was one of the officers receiving General Lafayette upon his return to this country in 1824. As is well known, the visit of this illustrious soldier, the Commandant of the National Guard of Paris, was responsible for the formation of the Seventh Regiment out of the Eleventh Artillery as a separate organization, being first known as the Infantry Battalion of National Guards of the Twenty-seventh Regiment of Artillery. James Benedict took an active interest in the new organization and Captain Prosper M. Wetmore of his staff was detached as its Commander. General Benedict was active in state and city politics, being a close friend and a supporter of De Witt Clinton. He was repeatedly a member of the legislature. His widow received from the United States Government a warrant for 160 acres of land in consideration of his services in the War of 1812.

Thomas Benedict (1617——), said to have been born in 1617 in Nottinghamshire, England, accompanied his father and his stepmother to America in 1638. With them was also the daughter of the second Mrs. Benedict, Mary Bridgum, and she later became the wife of Thomas. The family lived in the Massachusetts Bay Colony for some time but Thomas Benedict appears in Southold, Long Island, as a purchaser of land, in 1649. He was in Huntington in 1657 and living in Jamaica in 1662. In March, 1663, he was appointed a magistrate by Stuyvesant, and also in that year bore a petition to Hartford asking for the annexation to Connecticut of the towns on the west end of Long Island. In 1664, at the time of the English seizure of New Amsterdam, he was a Commissioner for Jamaica. In September, 1664, he applied with others to the Governor, Colonel Richard Nicolls, for permission to settle in New Jersey. Apparently he did not go himself as in 1665 Nicolls commissioned him Lieutenant of the Foot Company of Jamaica. He left for Norwalk, Connecticut, that same year where he at once became town clerk. Very evidently his sympathies were with the Puritans and not with the English and Dutch of New York. He was selectman and clerk at Norwalk at various times, a representative to the General Assembly, and appears as patentee of the town in the Patent of 1686. At the direction of the Court he with others founded Danbury, Connecticut. He was always active in the Presbyterian Church. His will was executed March 18, 1689-90, but the date of his death is unknown.

Dirck Benson (——1659) originally from Groningen and later Amsterdam, Holland, came to America about 1648. He had already married Catalina Berck (1625-1693) presumably in Amsterdam. On August 2, 1649, he purchased of Henry Agbersin (Egbertsen) half a lot in New Amsterdam northeast of the Fort, now the lower end of Broadway. He was in Beverwyck (Albany) from 1653 to his death on January 6 or February 12, 1659. He was a carpenter by trade. His wife married secondly about 1661 Harmen Thomasse Hun and died April 14, 1693. She made a joint will with Hun in 1663 in which she mentioned five of her children by Benson as living. The son Johannes was a Lieutenant and Captain in the Militia, serving in King William's War.

Frans Jansen Bloetgoet (Bloodgood) (——1676) is supposed to have been a resident of Gouda, Holland, born about 1635, and emigrating to America in 1658, the year after his marriage to Lysabeth Jans of Gouda. He is first found in Flushing, Long Island, on November 4, 1659. In that year he was an agent of the Dutch Commissioners to New Amstel, the Colony on the Delaware, an office he held at other periods as late as 1673. In 1660 he owned land in Flatbush and was sued that same year in New Amsterdam for rent owed Pieter Hermzen. He was Schepen at Flushing in 1673, and in 1674 Deputy to New Orange (New York). On March 24, 1674, he was made "Chief Officer (Schout) of the inhabitants of the Dutch Nation dwelling in the Towns of Flushing, Heemstede (Hempstead), Rustdorp (Jamaica) and Middleburgh (Newtown)." His duty was to warn them on the approach of the enemy to repair to New Orange with arms. He held no actual military commission, although generally referred to now as Captain. Upon the second surrender of New York to the English he was Privy Counsellor to the Governor. By trade he was a carpenter and builder and seems to have been prosperous in business. His will is dated at Flushing, December 29, 1676, but is unrecorded. He states that he is "sorely wounded and very weak" and is supposed to have been engaged in a skirmish with Indians at Whitestone, L. I. He presumably died the same day that he made his brief testament. He was a good Dutchman, although living in Flushing, an English settlement, and had his five children all taken to New Amsterdam for baptism. His widow survived him and married again in 1679, taking Wouter Guysbertse of Brooklyn, as her second husband.

Jan Laurensz Bogaert, commonly referred to as Jan Louwe, emigrated from Schoonderwoert (land reclaimed from the water) on the ship Bonte Coe (Spotted Cow), sailing from Amsterdam on April 16, 1663. With him was his wife, Cornelia Everts, and two young children. Jan Louwe first settled at Bedford on Long Island, now a part of Brooklyn, where he remained nine years. He afterwards purchased the farm of de la Montagne at New Haerlem, locating there in 1672. However, he held on to his Bedford property for more than twenty years after his removal, disposing of it in 1695. He kept his Haerlem property until September 21, 1706, when it was sold to Captain Johannes Benson, a son of Dirck Benson. The following spring Jan Louwe removed to New York City, where he is supposed to have lived until his death,—the date of which is uncertain,—at a small farm situated near the present Canal Street or Chatham Square, on Van Tienhoven's Road. He and his wife had been members of the Reformed Church since shortly after their arrivel at New Haerlem, but in the absence of a local preacher their son Johannes, born in Haerlem, in 1672, was baptized in New Amsterdam. Several of his children moved to Rockland County, N. Y. While at Haerlem Jan Louwe served two terms, in 1675 and 1676, as magistrate. At the allotments of 1677 and 1691 of the unappropriated lands he drew two pieces of property. Jan Louwe was one of twelve or more of the early settlers of New Netherland bearing the name of Boogaerdt in its various forms, few of them being related to one another. The name is now generally spelt Bogert or Bogart.

Pierre Bontecou is said to have been a descendant of William Isbrand Bontekoe, a Dutch navigator in the early part of the seventeenth century, and was himself a native of La Rochelle. In 1684 it is recorded in France that he, his wife, and five children, "fugitives" from the Isle of Ré, had gone it was supposed to "la Caroline." Family tradition says they went from France to England. However, he was in New York as early as July 24, 1689, when he and his wife Marguerite (possibly Collinot) presented their daughter Rachel for baptism in the French Church. He is believed to have taught school in Manhattan in 1702.

Christian Bouck, one of the original settlers of Schoharie, New York, arrived on the ship Lyons on June 13, 1710, having a grant of land from Queen Anne. His son, Johannes, entered as John Buck, served as a Lieutenant in the Thirteenth Regiment of Albany County Militia during the Revolution.

John Bowne (1627-1695) was born on the 9th of the third month, 1627, which would be either March or May, according to the calendar meant. His birth came at Matlock, in Derbyshire, England, and he was baptized at the Parish Church there, as his father, Thomas, had been before him (on May 25, 1595). Thomas Bowne, with his children, John and Dorothy (born 1631), came to New England probably in the latter part of 1648, as they arrived at Boston, Massachusetts, in 1649. In October, 1650, John returned alone to England, but was back in this country in May, 1651. In June of that year he visited Flushing, Long Island, in the company of his brother-in-law, Edward Farrington, recently the husband of Dorothy Bowne. On May 7, 1656, we find John Bowne marrying, at Flushing, Hannah Feake. She was the daughter of Lieutenant Robert Feake and Elizabeth (Fones) Winthrop, her father, Robert, being a soldier of merit and one of the two Patentees and Patroons of Greenwich, Connecticut. Hannah Feake had been living at Flushing only since about 1649. Captain John Underhill, then living at Southold, Long Island, wrote to Hannah's cousin, John Winthrop, Jr., on April 12, 1656, that he "was latli at Flushing Hannah Feke is to be married to a verri jentiele young man of gud abilliti of lovli fetture and gud behafior."

Hannah Bowne early became a Friend, and her husband, first out of curiosity, accompanied her to the Quaker meetings in the woods. John Bowne soon became so much affected and convinced that he joined the sect and invited the Friends to meet at his house. The Magistrates of Flushing, on August 24, 1662, complained of the many Quakers among them and of their meetings at Bowne's house. An ordinance of the Dutch West India Company, enacted that year, forbid the holding of other meetings than those of the Reformed Church, and John Bowne was arrested on November 1, 1662, charged with harboring Quakers and permitting them to hold meetings at his house, and taken to prison at Fort Amsterdam. The Court, on the fourteenth of November, fined him twenty-five pounds Flemish and threatened to double the fine for the second offense and banishment for the third. Bowne refused to pay the fine and was confined on bread and water in a cell, without the privilege of receiving visitors. His determination was unaltered and he was moved to better quarters in the Stadthaus prison. The Court said he must pay the fine or be banished or promise to leave within three months if set free. On December 21, 1662, he was allowed to visit his family for three days and on the 31st was put on board ship and sent a prisoner to Amsterdam, where he arrived on the twenty-ninth of the second month, 1663. When Bowne refused to sign the papers drawn up by the West India Company, replying to their demands with a highly elevated and dignified letter, he was released, this being within two months of his arrival.

He returned home by way of England and the Island of Barbadoes, reaching Flushing March 30, 1664. The authorities in Holland had sent to the officials in New Amsterdam a letter stating that despite their objections to Quakers "the consciences of men ought ever to remain free and unshackled," one of the very first proclamations of religious liberty in America. Hannah Bowne had become a minister in the Friends and went on a religious mission to England in 1675, being joined there by her husband in 1676. Together they went through England and Holland, returning to London late in 1677, and in that city, at the home of Quakers named Elson, Hannah died on January 31, 1677/8. The preservation of some of John Bowne's correspondence while on this trip gives evidence that he was a man of considerable education and force. John Bowne afterwards married twice, secondly, in 1679, Hannah Bickerstaff, and thirdly, in 1693, Mary Cock. He himself died on December 20, 1695, the Quaker records stating that "he had a constant meeting in his house neare about forty yeares; hee allso suffered much for ye truth's seak."

His house in Flushing, built in 1661, still stands on Bowne Avenue, presumably the oldest home on Long Island. In this building, where the Friends met and George Fox was a guest, a memorial tablet has been placed, and John Bowne's descendants, still its owners, open the place to all visitors.

Jan Dircksen Brinkerhoff (——1661) was a Hollander, born in the Province of Drenthe, but living for some time in Flushing, in the Province of Zeeland, before emigrating to this country. He reached New Amsterdam about 1638, settling on Staten Island under contract with its Patroon, Cornelis Melyn. The Indian attacks of 1641, in which one of his sons was killed, made him obtain a release on August 15th of that year. He moved to Long Island, settling within the limits of the present Brooklyn. He secured land from Governor Kieft on March 26, 1646. He was a Magistrate for Breuckelen from 1654 to 1661, and an elder at the time of the organization of the Reformed Church of 1656. His death came on January 16, 1661, in Breuckelen. He had married Susannah Dubbels in Holland, and all of his children were born in that country. His only daughter married Willem Gerritse van Couwenhoven. His wife died before 1677.

Jonas Bronck is said to have come from Hoorn, Holland, in his own private vessel in 1639. He acquired from the Indians in that year a large tract of land "lying between the great Kill (Harlem River) and the Ahquahung." The Ahquahung later was known after Jonas Bronck as the Bronx River and hence the Borough of the Bronx bears his name. The farm, supposed to consist of about 500 acres, probably occupied the neck of land immediately to the north of the present Bronx Kills and extended from the Harlem River to the East River at a point opposite North Brother's Island. Bronck's house stood at about the present site of the station of the Harlem River branch of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., near the corner of Southern Boulevard and Willis Avenue. At this home on March 28, 1642, gathered the parties to a Treaty of Peace. Governor William Kieft had had difficulties with the Wickquaskeek Indians, finally sending a bloodless expedition against them under Ensign Hendrick Van Dyck, and they were ready for an agreement. It has been said that Bronck was murdered by the Indians shortly after this but that is considered improbable by Riker and others. He died sometime between the signing of the Treaty and May 6, 1643, when an inventory of his effects is recorded. He was a man of education and means and possessed one of the few libraries in the country at that time. In June, 1643, Arendt Van Curler was betrothed to his widow and presumably soon married her.

Bourgon Broucard, a name also spelled Broulaet and now generally Brokaw, was a French Huguenot, one of those that for a time lived under the protection of their German co-religionists at Frankenthal, a few miles from Manheim on the Rhine, before coming to America. Broucard reached this country in 1675, accompanied by his wife, Catherine Le Febre. In 1677 he seems to have been at Bedford as he is on the Domine's list of Reformed Dutch Church members as removed to Flushing, although he was later known as belonging to the French Church. He settled at Cripplebush, Bushwick, where he bought a farm in 1684. This property he sold in 1688 and removed his family to Newtown. In 1690 and 1693 are recorded purchases of much land at Newtown but this property was sold in 1702, although later repurchased by his son. He had at least eight children and all his sons but one removed to Somerset County, N. J.

Lawrence Burras (1720-1797) was a resident and probably a native of New York City prior to 1750. He was married at the Old Dutch Church on April 24, 1746. He owned at the time of his death houses and lots Nos. 2 Nassau St., 7 Wall St., 7 Cortlandt St., and the property adjoining it on the East. With his wife, Ester, and his brother, William Burras, he is buried in Trinity Churchyard.

Stephen Carman (1752-1824) was a descendant of John Carman, who, with his wife, Florence, reached Roxbury, Mass., from England on November 4, 1631. From Roxbury the family moved to Lynn, Mass., and from there to Wallingford, Connecticut. John Carman next appeared as a purchaser from the Indians, with Captain John Seaman, of a large tract of land on Long Island, near Hempstead. This was about 1633. John Carman's death came in 1653 and his wife's in 1656. Stephen Carman was a delegate from Queens County to the State Convention held at Poughkeepsie in 1788 and was elected in all for twenty-two consecutive terms in the New York Legislature.

Elie Chardavoine was a Huguenot from Saujon, near the southern coast of St. Onge (Saintonge), France. He is supposed to have arrived at New York in 1692. In this same year, on August 24th, he was married in the French Church of New York to Anne Valos (Valleau), a fellow countrywoman from the Ile de Ré.

James Chrystie (1750-1807) was the eldest son of John Chrystie and his wife, Janet Clarkson, and was born near Edinburgh, Scotland. After completing his studies he came to America, landing at Philadelphia early in 1775. He enlisted in the Pennsylvania Regiment commanded by his friend, Lieut-Col. Craig, and with it followed Arnold in his northern expedition to join Montgomery. He was appointed First Lieutenant in the Second Pennsylvania Continental Infantry, 1776, and while with Wayne at Ticonderoga, in 1776, was commissioned Captain. This Regiment later became the Third Continental, and again later Captain Chrystie was transferred to the Second Pennsylvania Continental. He was appointed Major by brevet in the United States Army in 1783 and honorably discharged with his Regiment in that same year. He married Mary, the daughter of Rev. John Albert Wygandt, and after the declaration of peace established a real estate business in New York City. However, he shortly withdrew to join Wayne's expedition against the Indians and served throughout the campaign of 1794. Subsequently he entered the chinaware business at 33 Maiden Lane, New York City. He was an original member of the New York State Cincinnati and a vice-president of the St. Andrew's Society. He was buried in the yard of the Wall Street Presbyterian Church with full military honors. Chrystie Street is named after one of his sons.

George Gilson Clapp was born in 16—, in Devonshire, England, and was there educated for the profession of medicine. During the first twenty years of his life he was a great traveler. He visited most of the countries in Europe, extending his journeys through Palestine, and some parts of the Turkish Empire. He visited the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem in the character of a pilgrim. He returned to England, after having spent most of a large fortune, and began the practice of medicine. In 1667 he emigrated to America and settled in South Carolina, from whence two years later he removed to Westchester County, New York, where he spent the rest of his life in the practice of his profession.

John Cooper (1755-1838), first a farmer at Fishkill and later engaged in business in New York City, served during the War of the Revolution as a Second Lieutenant in Captain Isaac Van Wyck's Company, New York Militia, being commissioned June 25, 1778.

John Coutant (1697-1781) was a French Protestant, from Aunis, who settled in New Rochelle, N. Y.

Samuel Deal was born in England in 1713 and died in New York City on March 21, 1778. He had married, in 1758, Elizabeth Arthur, who was born in England on February 10, 1726, and died in New York City on March 12, 1777. She was the daughter of Francis Arthur (died 1750) and his wife, Sarah Rustall, of Grey's Parish, Bisley County, Gloucester, England. His son, Samuel, was a merchant, living on the corner of Broad and Pearl Streets, New York City, and having a country place at Rye, N. Y. In 1813 either he, or his son of the same name, was one of the first school commissioners of Rye.

Johannes de Decker sailed for America on the ship Swarte Arent. A letter addressed by the Directors of the West India Company to Peter Stuyvesant on November 24, 1654, said they were sending de Decker as supercargo, but "his abilities deserve of a better and higher position." It was set forth that he was "experienced in business having served faithfully for some years as procureur (State's Attorney) and notary at Schiedam." Stuyvesant was asked to give him employment, as he was to remain in New Netherland in the Company's service, and upon the first occasion to get him "a proper and decent appointment." Stuyvesant seems to have shown the newcomer much consideration, as early in 1655 he was appointed first Notary and then President of the Court and Commissary at Fort Orange and Beverwyck (Albany). He frequently appeared in court at New Amsterdam as attorney and arbitrator. In 1657 he became Comptroller and a member of Stuyvesant's Council. He was absent from the country a full year, from July, 1659, to July, 1660, but seems to have remained on the Council to 1664. On October 28, 1664, there is record of eighteen pounds of powder being fired as a salute for him when he left for Virginia to attempt to recover one of the West India Company's slave ships which had been seized by a privateer. On August 29, 1664, he was one of the four commissioners to ascertain the object of the English fleet below New Amsterdam, and on September 6th he was one of the six delegates appointed by Stuyvesant to sign the articles of capitulation. Sometime later he was found by the English to be actively engaged in trying to inspire resistance in the people at Albany and he was ordered "within the space of ten days to transporte himself out of this governement." He had been allotted twenty negro slaves out of the first slave ship Gideon in 1664 by way of settlement of his arrears in salary. He could not dispose of ten of them and tried in vain to have them taken back by the Duke of York's government. In 1670 he sued Stuyvesant for his salary, which the West India Company had refused to pay because of the surrender of the city, but he lost his case.

Isaack de Forest (1616-1674) was the son of Jesse de Forest and his wife, Marie du Cloux, being born to them at their temporary home on the Breedestraet, in Leyden, Holland, and baptized on July 10, 1616. His father, Jesse, was the Walloon leader of the Huguenots frequently referred to by historians as the "founder of New York." Jesse, a Protestant fugitive from Avesnes, France, personally made the petition for permission to settle in America and recruited the first band of actual colonists for New Amsterdam, but the discovery in the British Museum within recent years of a journal apparently his shows that he did not accompany these settlers, but led another expedition to South America in 1623, dying on the Amazon on October 22, 1624. Isaack, his son, sailed for New Netherland on September 25, 1636, on the ship Rensselaerswyck, owned jointly by the Patroon, Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, and his uncle, Gerard de Forest. The mate and trader was Hendrick de Forest, Isaack's brother, and the passengers included their sister, Rachel, and her husband, Dr. Johannes de la Montagne, and two men employed by the de Forests. The vessel had a much interrupted passage and did not reach New Amsterdam until March 5, 1637. Both Isaack and Hendrick promptly secured grants of land, becoming among the founders of Harlem. Isaack's property was about one hundred acres, a strip nearly a mile long, beginning on Harlem Creek and extending in an easterly direction to the shore of the Hellegat (Harlem River), opposite Bronck's Kill (about First Avenue and 126th Street), and was largely devoted to raising tobacco. He married Sara, daughter of Philippe du Trieux, on June 9, 1641. Isaack had been living with his sister, Rachel de la Montagne, but now he had buildings erected on his bouwery: a dwelling-house, barn, kitchen, and tobacco house. His brother Hendrick had died on July 26, 1637, and Isaack was somewhat richer because of his share of the estate. The Indian outbreak of 1643 caused Isaack to lease his farm for three years, but John Denton, who was to take it on October 1, 1643, cancelled the lease following more attacks by the savages. When peace had come in 1650 de Forest sold the farm to Wilhelmus Beekman. Cornelis Claesen Swits secured possession of it in 1653 and was murdered by the Indians there in 1655 when the bouwery was again ravaged. The Director and Council then ordered that the outlying settlers lay out a village, and in 1658 this was done on Isaack de Forest's old bouwery, the village being called Nieuw Haerlem and Isaack's lane being its first street. Isaack himself had been living in New Amsterdam since 1643, with a house next to Domine Bogardus, on Winckel Straet, a narrow lane opened near the fort at the time of the Indian alarms. He also had owned since 1645 a piece of land on the Marcktveldt (Market-place), with a half-acre garden. In 1653 Isaack and his family were living in a new home bought on Brouwer Straet (now Stone), where his nearest neighbor was the brewer, Colonel Oloff Stevensen van Cortlandt. De Forest was in the business of shipping tobacco, opening a warehouse in the Old Church, and was also engaged in brewing on a large scale in partnership with Johannes Verveelen, this being a well-regulated and important industry. In 1662 Isaack sold his brew-house. In 1656 he had come to the rescue of brewer Jacob Wolphertsen van Couwenhoven by contracting for all his beer, and in the same year de Forest took over the old church building which van Couwenhoven had bought. Isaack replaced the building with a "house which was an ornament to the city." He also owned other houses, which he sold to Wilhelmus Beekman and Jan de la Montagne, Jr. Isaack became one of the Nine Men in 1652; an inspector of tobacco, 1653; farmer of the revenue of the weigh-house, 1655; Schepen, 1656; small burgher, 1657; great burgher and Schepen, 1658; and farmer of the tavern excise, 1660. He became a lender of money and aided materially various public causes. In 1664 Isaack de Forest, while sailing into New York on his sea-going yacht, was captured by the English then in the bay. When released on August 31st he so overestimated the size of the English force, doubtless having been purposely misinformed, that he was largely responsible for the prompt surrender of the city. Isaack made his will on June 4, 1672, and died in the summer of 1674. His widow lived until November 9, 1692. They had fourteen children, only seven surviving.

John Delafield, the oldest son of John and Martha (Dell) Delafield, of Aylesbury, Buckinghamshire, and of London, was born at his father's house, 62 Whitecross Street, St. Gyles without Cripplegate, London, March 16, 1748. He took passage on the British letter-of-marque Vigilant, Captain Barnewell, and landed in New York, April 5, 1783. He had brought with him a manuscript copy of the text of the provisional treaty of peace between England and the United States, the official copy having been forwarded by another vessel which arrived in America after the Vigilant. He also brought letters of introduction to the principal citizens of New York and those of Boston and Philadelphia, and to English officers stationed in New York. He was admitted as a citizen of the United States by an act of the legislature May 4, 1784, and as a freeman of the city, June 16 of the same year. He began business as a merchant and later in 1796 took up marine underwriting. On June 15, 1787, was one of the founders and was made a director of the Mutual Insurance Company of New York and on January 12, 1792, he was appointed one of the directors of the New York branch of the United States Bank, just established. In 1794 he became one of the founders and a member of the first board of trustees of the Tontine Coffee House. On February 1, 1796, he was a founder and one of thirty-nine New York capitalists to subscribe ten thousand dollars each to capitalize the United Insurance Company. He was made a director of the corporation and was subsequently, on February 13, 1804, elected president of the company, an office he held for many years. He was a pioneer marine underwriter in New York and became the head of the private underwriters of the city. The war between France and England at the close of the eighteenth century brought great disaster on American shipping which loss fell heavily on New York marine underwriters. Mr. Delafield paid his losses at the sacrifice of most of his fortune and the mortgaging of much of his real estate. His holdings were in New York, on Long Island and in the townships of Hague and Cambray in St. Lawrence county. In the summer of 1791 he purchased the Blackwell farm of one hundred and forty acres on the east bank of the East River opposite Blackwell's Island where he built a large country residence. The place was named "Sunswick," after a small river near by. It became one of the best kept country seats in the neighborhood of New York and its flowers and fruits gained wide reputation. Here Washington Irving, who was an intimate friend of his oldest son John, concerning whom he wrote the anecdote in the Sketch Book called "The Wife," often enjoyed his hospitality. Mr. Delafield died at his residence, No. 9 Pearl Street, New York City, July 3, 1824; his remains were interred in Trinity Church burial ground at Hudson Street; were first removed to the vault of his son John Delafield, St. Thomas' Church, Broadway and Houston Streets and in 1857 to the Delafield family vault in Greenwood cemetery. He married, December 11, 1784, Ann Hallett (1766-1839), born February 24, 1766; died March 6, 1839, daughter and co-heiress of Joseph Hallett and Elizabeth (Hazard) Hallett.

Jean Mousnier de la Montagne first appears as a signer, with his father, of the "round-robin" of the Walloons, addressed in July, 1621, to the British Ambassador at The Hague. The elder man was entered as a "pharmacist and surgeon" and the junior as "student in medicine." They were natives of Saintonge, in western France, the adoption of the name Montagne being unexplained. Jean Mousnier accompanied Jesse de Forest on his ill-fated expedition to South America (1623-1625), apparently the only unmarried man with the ten "heads of families." He returned to Leyden on the Black Eagle in 1625 and appears in 1626 as a boarder in the home of the widow of Jesse de Forest, on the Voldersgraft, near St. Peter's Church, Leyden, when he was again entered as a medical student in the University. On November 27, 1626, he married Rachel, daughter of Jesse and Marie (du Cloux) de Forest. He was then thirty-one years old and she about seventeen. In 1628 Jean Mousnier left with his young wife on the Fortuyn for the Island of Tobago, a Dutch possession, one of the Windward group, northwest of Guinea. His wife returned to Leyden in 1631, supposedly enfeebled by the severe climate of this tropical home. Her husband probably came back in 1633 and appears registered at the University for the third time in March, 1636. On September 25, 1636, he sailed for America, with his wife and three children, on the ship Rensselaerswyck. Most of the passengers were in the service of the Patroon Kiliaen Van Rensselaer, but de la Montagne was one of a family group consisting of the two brothers of his wife, Isaack and Hendrick de Forest, with their families. Another child was born to Rachel de la Montagne at sea before March 5, 1637, when New Amsterdam was reached. In New Netherland de la Montagne, whose excellent education and high natural abilities enabled him to take an important place in the community, was generally referred to as Johannes La Montagne. When he first arrived, in 1637, he was in charge of Hendrick de Forest's bouwery while the owner took the Rensselaerswyck, as its mate and trader, to Virginia. Hendrick died while away and de la Montagne assumed the proprietorship of his property with much success, living on it with all his family. When the widow de Forest remarried and her husband sought to recover the estate, de la Montagne's suit for the recovery of expenses forced the sale of the farm, which was bought in by the shrewd de la Montagne. He continued to live there, calling the place "Vredendal" (peaceful dale). It included much of the upper part of Central Park. He was driven off the land by the Indians, following Kieft's murderous excursion against the savages in 1643. In 1643 his wife, Rachel, died, and four years later he wedded Agenietie, widow of Arent Corssen. He was appointed Vice-Director of Fort Orange in 1656 and lived there as late as 1664, although complaining of its hardships and his poverty. His other official positions included membership in Kieft's and Stuyvesant's Councils, 1638-1656; Commander of the troops on Manhattan Island, 1640-1656; Commander of troops at Fort Hope (Connecticut), 1641; Delegate to the Convention at New Amsterdam of 1653; official surgeon and a member of various important Commissions. His death came about 1670.

Nicholas de Meyer appears in the early records of New Amsterdam as Nicholas de Meyer van Hamborg or van Holstein (Hamburg then claiming to be under the Duchy of Holstein). He was evidently not Dutch, but German. It is uncertain when he reached this country, but it was probably after 1650. He married in 1655 in New Amsterdam, Lydia, the daughter of Hendrick Van Dyck, the Schout Fiscal. It is said that a former rival forced a quarrel with de Meyer at the wedding. Nicholas de Meyer gave all his attention to increasing his fortune and became a highly successful man. He was a merchant, a dealer in real estate, apparently a money lender, and in 1658 evidently a miller, as he bought Jacob Van Couwenhoven's flour mill. By 1661 he owned property not only in New Amsterdam but in Albany and Schenectady. In 1662 he had a farm at Haerlem. In one year, 1670, he presented for record in the village of Gravesend alone sixteen mortgages and deeds. In 1664 he was made a schepen. When the English took the city in 1664 the soldiers wanted to plunder his house knowing of his wealth. He visited Holland in 1668 and freighted a ship with merchandise for New York but the English for some time would not let him bring it in. When the Dutch regained possession of the city in 1673 a loan was forced on the "best and most affluent persons." Frederick Philipse's fortune was assessed at 80,000 guilders and de Meyer and Cornelis Steenwyck came next at 50,000 each. As most of the names were assessed at 5,000 or less this was an indication of affluence. However, when the English got into the city again two years later and made a tax list of 300 names de Meyer was not on it. He was Mayor of the city then (1676) and seems to have escaped taxation because of his office. De Meyer had been appointed Mayor by Governor Andros for one term. He had previously been an alderman for three years. He was nominated for the Council by Governor Dongan in 1687 and appointed by the King in 1689 but died before Governor Sloughter arrived in 1691. De Meyer had been Captain in the Militia and was Major Commanding when the Duke of York was proclaimed James II. He was twice married; after the death of Lydia Van Dyck, taking as his wife, Sarah, widow of John Wickleson. His will was proved on March 31, 1692, and mentions five children, although he had baptised six.

Jan Gerretse Dorlandt, an emigrant from Holland about 1652, settled first in Brooklyn, near the present Fulton Ferry, and later in the Village of Bedford, in Brooklyn Township. There he had a bouwery of forty acres. In 1657 he was on this East Bedford farm. It is next known that he bought, on April 6, 1677, of Auke Janse van Nuyse, a meadow lot in Flatbush. He was elected a Commissioner by the Court of Sessions in 1687, serving as late as 1701. In 1699 he was also a Collector for Brooklyn. He married twice, little being known of his first wife. She died between 1663 and 1666, leaving at least five children. Dorlandt married, secondly, in 1667, Anna Remsen, daughter of Rem Jansen Vanderbeeck and his wife, Jannetje Rapalie. The Brooklyn census of 1698 shows Anna Remsen still living, with three children, of whom there were later five. Husband and wife were members of the Reformed Dutch Church of Breuckelen (Brooklyn) as early as 1677, and Jan Gerretse became an Elder in 1711. Gerret Gerretse is the oldest known child by the first wife, being born in 1655 at Brooklyn, and living until sometime after 1741. He lived at Brooklyn, Flatbush, and Gravesend. He married twice; in 1682, Cornelia de Beauvoise, and in 1684, Gertrude Aukes van Nuys. His grandson, Charles, who spelled his name Durland, was born on March 19, 1731, near Oyster Bay, L. I., and died on December 17, 1798, at Chester, Orange County, N. Y. He was a farmer, believed to have served in the French and Indian wars, who moved to Orange County about 1754. In 1788 he owned one hundred acres there. There, too, in 1755 he married Jane Swartwout (1730-1812). The family name is now usually spelled Durland or Dorland.

Volckert Jansen Douw, first referred to as Volckert Hansz, and after 1651 usually as Volckert Jansz, sailed from Amsterdam on the ship den Coninck David on July 23, 1641, and arrived at New Amsterdam on November 29, 1641. He was in the service of the Patroon at Rensselaerswyck, where he first appears on record early in 1642. In 1647 he was employed on the Vlackte; from 1647 to 1649 he and Jan Thomasz were jointly charged for ground rent and the right to trade; from 1649 to 1652 he was charged for his "place on the hill" on which he had built a house. From 1653 to 1658 he with Pieter Hartgers and Jan Thomasz were charged jointly with rent for a farm on Papscanee Island, and Volckert Jansz and Jan Thomasz bought this land in 1658 for 950 beavers. Volckert Jansz paid tithes on this farm as late as 1694. On January 24, 1664, the council of Rensselaerswyck passed a resolution annulling the purchase of land from the Indians at Schodac by Volckert and Jan Thomasz without the consent of the colony, but the two owners produced a patent from Stuyvesant dated November 3, 1663. In 1650 Volckert Jansen accompanied Arent van Curler on an embassy to the Maquaes. On April 16, 1672, Volckert Jansen conveyed his right in Shutters Island, below Bahrens and near Coeymans, Albany County, N. Y. He held the rank of Captain in the Dutch service. Part of lands he bought from the Indians are the site of the present Douw Building of Albany, still in the possession of his descendants. He was Commissary of the Court at Fort Orange, 1652-56, and Magistrate in 1654.

Joost Durie, a name now generally spelled Duryee and Duryea, was a French Huguenot, who emigrated to this country about 1675 from Manheim, in the Palatinate of the Rhine, where, with others of his faith, he had enjoyed temporary relief from religious persecution. He was accompanied to this country by his mother and his wife, Magdalena Le Febre. He settled first at New Utrecht, where he purchased a farm, which was sold on October 5, 1681, for 3,200 guilders and a new wagon, to Gerrit Cornelisse van Duyn. Joost Durie then moved to the disputed lands between Newtown and Bushwick, dying at his home there about 1727. His name appears on the Bushwick assessment rolls of 1683 and 1693 and the 1698 census, and in 1687 he took the oath of allegiance to the English. He had eleven children.

Phillippe du Trieux (Dutrieux, de Truye, Truax) was a Walloon, born about 1585, and was one of the first company of settlers of New York enrolled by Jesse de Forest. Like de Forest he was a dyer, and his affiliation with the same church and guild probably influenced him to join the expedition "pour Westinde" in 1624. He was assuredly one of the very first settlers of the city. A map of 1644 shows that he had a large tract of land on the east side, now partly occupied by Fulton Market. In 1638 he was Court Messenger or Marshal. He married twice, first Jaquemine Noiret, whose name appears with his in Leyden in 1617. Four years later he was in Amsterdam with a second wife, Susannah du Chesne, and together they applied for a transfer from their church in 1624. Probably all but his first two children were by his second wife. His children, of whom there were probably eight, married well, allying themselves with such prominent New Netherland families as Viele, de Groat, Wendell, de Forest and Groat. He died before 1653.

Evert Duyckinck came to New Netherland about 1638 from Borken, a village in North Brabant, Holland. He was early in the service of the Dutch West India Company, and in 1640 is known to have been stationed at Fort Hope, near the present city of Hartford, Connecticut. He was by profession a painter, limner, glazier and burner of glass. It is believed that it was he who painted on glass the coats of arms of the early settlers for the First Dutch Church of Brooklyn. He lived in New Amsterdam, on Hoogh Straat, now Stone, near William, and held property in Flatbush under the name, Evert Duyckinck van Borken. He married on September 9, 1646, Hendrickje Simons, of Noordthorn. He was a freeman of New York in 1698 and had been a fire warden of the city in 1674. He died about 1700-1702.

Jan (Roelofszen) Elting (1632-1729) or Eltinge was born in the hamlet of Swightelaer, now Zwiggelbe, three miles from Beylen in the "landscap" of Drenthe in the Netherlands on July 29th, 1632, as the son of Roelof Eltinge, farmer ,and Aeltje, his wife. He left the rights upon the farm to his elder brother and went to New Netherland as a carpenter, prior to 1657. In 1662 he helped to build the Reformed Church at Flatbush, Long Island. In 1663 he bought land there, but whereas the title was not yet clear in 1665 and the English had occupied the country in the mean time, he went to the Esopus. There at Kingston, he became by the English Governor's appointment of September 6, 1665, a member of the court. He married there, before 1677, Jacomyntje, a widow, daughter of Cornelis Barentse Sleght, from Woerden in Holland. His father-in-law was one of the signers of the Wiltwyck (Kingston) compact of May 31, 1658, and had also before lived in Flatbush. Five children, Aeltje, Geertje, Roelof, Cornelis, and Willem were born to them. Jan Elting removed with his family to Hurley, where he was a very prosperous farmer. In 1686 he bought also land at Rhinebeck, opposite the Rondout Creek. He died on his farm at Hurley in the spring of 1729, in the 95th year of his age.

Richard Everit, a Long Island patentee and magistrate under the Dutch government, was of parentage hitherto undetermined. He first appears on Long Island in 1656 as an original settler of the town called by the Dutch Rustdorp and by the English Jamaica. Jamaica was originally settled by a small group of Englishmen from Hempstead, a neighboring village, and Hempstead was founded in 1644, by emigrants from New England, chiefly from Wethersfield, and Stamford, in the New Haven Colony. It does not seem to be known that Richard Everit was in Hempstead before going to Jamaica, although it is entirely probable, as his name appears on such early records there as the tax list of 1657-1658. Still this may have been his son of the same name, Richard Everit being a name found in every generation for centuries. It seems quite certain that Richard of Jamaica was not from the Connecticut settlements, and the search for his origin goes back to Massachusetts. The distinguished Everett family of Dedham, Massachusetts, have always believed that it was their ancestor, Richard by name, who presumably arrived with William Pynchon, the founder of Roxbury and Springfield, on the Jewel, one of Winthrop's fleet, which left England on April 8, 1630. When William Pynchon went through the wilderness to found Springfield in 1636, Richard Everit appears as his trader and agent. Everit witnessed an Indian deed there in 1636, and appears at various times as a landowner and town officer, certainly being there as late as June 29, 1643, when he married Mary Winch, a young girl of twenty, who had come over with the family of Rowland Stebbins in 1638 on the Francis, of Ipswich. This assumption of the Dedham Everett family would seem to ignore certain facts and presuppose others. It would make the Richard who was at Springfield moving back and forth between Dedham and Springfield, a considerable distance then, in every year up to the marriage in 1643, sometimes appearing in both towns less than four weeks apart. Pynchon does not seem to have had any interests in Dedham. Besides, assuming that one man owned the pieces of land granted to Richard Everit (Everitt, Everett, Evered) in both villages in the same period, the tradition, in order to accept the marriage in Springfield on June 29, 1643, to Mary Winch, has to presuppose an earlier marriage to a woman unnamed. Six children were recorded at Dedham, the sixth on March 14, 1643, and another was born on June 12, 1644; others following to make eleven in all, so the second marriage, if such it was, appears somewhat unnatural. Moreover, it is decidedly important to note that almost invariably the Dedham records speak of Richard Evered, rather than Everit, and that the Dedham will proved in 1682 is signed Evered, while the Springfield records always speak of Richard Everit. An early and particularly reputable family history says that Richard Everett of Dedham came over in 1634-1635 with his wife Mary, and this, with the implied continuity of this relationship, as Richard in his will mentioned his wife Mary, seems more probable than a second marriage, unconfirmed as this particular information is. Admitting then the possibility that the Richards of Dedham and Springfield may be different men, there may be advanced reasons why Richard Everit of Springfield may have gone to Long Island. It is known that Everit was closely attached to the service of William Pynchon, in Springfield. The excellent Pynchon lineage is familiar back into Essex County, England, and there it has been learned that a Richard Everit (Everard), of gentle birth, married a sister of an earlier William Pynchon, and that some relationship existed between the founder of Springfield and his follower seems certain. When Pynchon was so much angered and distressed by the harshness of the Springfield colonists after his publication of a so-called "heretic" book, he gave up America, returning to England in 1652. It can be believed that the position of Everit became less fortunate then and his thoughts might well have turned toward Long Island, for at Hempstead were the families of Coe, Ward, Osborn and Denton, among others, that came originally from Essex County, England, where Everit must have known of them, as all these names appear on the same parish registers. It is interesting, too, to note that an early Everit and a Denton of Jamaica married (1725), and that their young son, Daniel Denton, appeared in Springfield for a few years.

Such evidence as all this is admissible in an attempt to arrive at the origin of Richard Everit of Jamaica, surmise as it must largely be. The multiplicity of the name Richard in all branches of the Everit family is the greatest difficulty in arriving at positive identification. Richard Everit of Jamaica, who was a patentee in 1656, one of the very first town magistrates in 1659, and active in many public matters, seems to have lived until early in 1668, as on September 4th of that year an administrator was appointed. His wife was Elizabeth Clare, sister of John Clare, of Jamaica, and he had at least four children, Richard being the eldest. Richard Everit, of Springfield, had married in 1643, Mary Winch, but Elizabeth Clare is not mentioned until much later and may easily have been a second wife. Possibly the early death of Mary was the inducement to leave Springfield. Richard Everit, of Jamaica, signed his name as here given. In 1658 Richard Everit is taxed for six acres of land at Hempstead. He had no house nor cattle on it and was taxed merely for meadow land and "fower gattes." This land seems to have been granted in the general allotment of that year, but Richard, Senior, may have been just adding to land owned before going to Jamaica, or Richard, Junior, may have been starting out as a landowner. The Hempstead census of 1698 shows a Richard Everit, with wife, Elizabeth, but children with dissimilar names (although always a Richard!) than those of Richard of Jamaica, and this may well have been the son of Richard, Senior. His "ear-mark" for cattle was registered at Hempstead in 1714, and inherited by his son, George, on January 8, 1722/23.

A Richard Everit (also Everitt) died intestate in 1764, when his son, Clear, was appointed administrator. John Clare, of Jamaica, in his will, dated and proved in 1720, left land not only to Richard, eldest son of his sister, Elizabeth Everit, but after the death of his wife practically all his real property was to go "to my cousin Richard Everit during his life and after his decease to his son Clare." Just who this Richard was is not certain, but he was surely one of the Jamaica family. The son's name is more usually spelled Clear, rather than Clare, but does not seem to have been St. Clair, as sometimes thought. Clear Everitt, who in January 1744/45 married Magdalena van der Burg, became a prominent citizen of early Poughkeepsie. He was sheriff in 1754, an overseer, and the owner of considerable property. Some indications seem to show that he was a Tory, but his property was not confiscated in 1777, like that of most Loyalists, and in 1784 he was paid rent for the use of his room by the Court of Oyer and Terminer. However, he was apparently absent from his home during part of the war, did not sign the Pledge of Association of 1775, nor bear a patriotic assessment. The stone house owned by Clear and his son, Richard Everitt in Poughkeepsie, according to popular belief was occupied during part of the Revolution by Governor Clinton. The State of New York has bought the building and it is now preserved as a historical museum. It is not improbable that Washington and Lafayette stayed there, and certainly it was used for important purposes, although it is not certain that it was the principal gubernatorial mansion in Poughkeepsie. The house seems to have been built after 1770, and while there is no evidence that Clear Everitt or his son Richard put it up, they are generally supposed to have done so.

Richard Floyd, a native of Wales, born about 1620, first appears in 1656 as a resident of Setauket, Long Island. He became the owner of considerable land by purchase and grant. He was one of the fifty-five original proprietors of Brookhaven, L. I. His death is believed to have occurred about 1700; his wife, named Susannah, living until January, 1706, when she died, at the age of eighty. One of their children, Richard, Jr., born on May 12, 1665, married on September 10, 1686, Margaret, daughter of Matthias Nicoll, the Secretary of the Province of New York. She was born on May 30, 1662, and died on February 1, 1718, leaving her husband and seven children. Richard Floyd, Jr., who inherited most of his father's property, and was a Justice and Colonel of the Suffolk County Militia, as his father had been before him, died on February 28, 1738. One of his descendants, David Richard Floyd, born 1764, adopted by will and statute the surname Jones, borne by his maternal grandfather, and was the progenitor of the well-known Floyd-Jones family. William Floyd (1734-1821) is perhaps the most illustrious of the descendants of Richard, the founder.

William Floyd (1734-1821) was left by his father's early death in charge of a considerable estate in Suffolk County, Long Island. He was prominent in local affairs even prior to the Revolution, in particular being the Colonel commanding the New York Militia of the County. He led his regiment to repel a threatened landing by the British at Gardiner's Bay in 1775. His Long Island property was later seized and held by the English, and their occupancy, together with his prolonged public duties, kept him away from his home for seven years. In 1784 he had purchased land on the Mohawk River to which he moved in 1803. He was a member of the Continental Congress, 1774-1783; a signer of the Declaration of Independence; member of New York Provincial Convention, 1775; member of New York Council of Safety, 1777; and member of the New York Senate, 1777-1788. He was several times a Presidential elector.

John Frost (1739-1831) is supposed to have been the son of one of two brothers who came from England, or probably from Wales, about 1730 and settled near Reading, Massachusetts. Either one or both of these brothers soon moved to Long Island and one not much later settled in the township of Carmel, near Putnam's Corners, Westchester County, N. Y. This man died at Carmel about 1800. John Frost, his son, was born June 27, 1739, probably in Reading, and died in Carmel on March 27th, 1831. He served in the Old French War, enlisting in 1760 in the Company for Dutchess County commanded by Captain Richard Rea. The muster roll states his age then as twenty years. He is believed to have also seen service in the Revolution. He settled at the head of Gilead Pond, Township of Carmel, Putnam County, N. Y., where he was a tanner and farmer. He married, probably at Reading, Huldah Munson, of Reading, who died October 13, 1802, aged sixty years.

Lion Gardiner (1599-1663) was born in England and went to Holland as a young military engineer among the English garrisons, which since 1585 had been stationed in various Dutch cities. Maurice of Orange-Nassau at that time was the first European military expert and foreigners were eager to learn his art of fortification and his scientific methods of warfare. Lion Gardiner learned this in the Fortress of Woerden. There he married Maria, daughter of Derck Willemszen Deurcant of that place. Persuaded by Hugh Peters, English Reformed Minister at Rotterdam, he made on the 1st of May, 1635, a contract for four years with the Saybrooke Company of London to build fortifications in the New England Colonies. He and his wife, his Dutch "work-master," and a French maid sailed on July 10, 1635, from Rotterdam on The Batcheler, via London, and arrived at Boston in November. There he completed early in 1636 the Fort Hill fortifications, and in March started to build Fort Saybrooke, on the mouth of the Connecticut, the "Fresh River" of New Netherland. He held command of the new fort for three years, where his eldest two children were born. He helped to dominate the Pequot Indians. His contract expired on May 1st, 1639, and on May 3rd he bought for a large black dog, a gun, shot and powder, some rum and a few Dutch blankets, from Yovawan, sachem of Pomanoc, the Island of Manchonac (Gardiner's Island) in Long Island Sound. He was the first foreign settler on New Netherland territory to ignore the West India Company's ownership and the Lords States General's Sovereignty of the colony, thus starting the international complications which led to the final transfer of that colony to the English in 1674. On March 10, 1640, Gardiner obtained a grant for his purchase, then named the "Isle of Wight," from the agent of the Earl of Sterling, who claimed ownership of Long Island under the King of England as Sovereign. With the increase of New England transmigration to Long Island, Lion Gardiner and others bought 30,000 acres of land for the settlement of East Hampton, first called Maidstone. With his family in 1653 he settled at East Hampton. In 1655 and again in 1657 Lion Gardiner was one of the East Hampton Committee of English-New Netherlanders, sent to Hartford to urge the placing of their town under the jurisdiction of Connecticut. He made his will on August 13th, 1658, and died at East Hampton in the latter part of 1663. His widow, Maria Deurcant, born at Woerden, Holland, in 1601, died in 1665. Their children, who all survived and married, were David (b. 1636), Maria (b. 1638), both born in Fort Saybrooke, and Elizabeth, born in 1641 on Gardiner's Island.

Aquila Giles (1758-1822) was the son of Jacob Giles of Baltimore and his wife, Johanna Paca, daughter of Governor Paca of Maryland.

At the outbreak of the Revolution Aquila Giles became a Major on the staff of Major-General Arthur St. Clair. He was captured and was a prisoner at the Flatbush, L. I., mansion of Col. William Axtell, the British officer who had married a daughter of Col. Abraham de Peyster. There he fell in love with the niece of Colonel Axtell, Elizabeth Shipton, a great-granddaughter of the Earl of Clarendon, and they were secretly married on October 30, 1780, ten days before his exchange. When the estate of Col. Axtell was confiscated by the Colonial Legislature Aquila Giles purchased it and lived there from 1784 until 1809. He was an aide-de-camp temporarily to General Washington in 1780; represented Queens County in the Legislature from 1788 to 1792; was Trustee of the old St. Anne's Church in Brooklyn, and vestryman in 1797; a Trustee of Erasmus Hall from 1787; Marshall of the United States Court, under appointment of the Presidents Washington and Adams, 1792-1800; Lieutenant Colonel of King's County Militia, 1795; a special Trustee for preserving peace in New York, 1810; Commissioned by John Jay as Captain of Horse, 1788, and Brigadier-General, 1800; made Major-General of Cavalry by Governor Tompkins, 1814; a member of the Marine Society, 1796; and an original member, Vice-President, and a member of the Standing Committee of the Society of the Cincinnati in New York. He is buried in Trinity Churchyard.

Samuel Gilford, who was born in Bristol, England, in 1729, left his home and came to the Colonies some time before he became of age and entered business as a merchant in New York. In 1773 he bought a house in William Street, New York City, where he resided the remainder of his life.

Philip Grim (1697-1760) arrived in New York City on October 17, 1739. He died there and was buried in the Lutheran Cemetery of the Swamp Church in Skinner Street. His body was later transferred to the family vault in St. Paul's Churchyard where all his descendants up to 1895 were buried. His son, David Grim (1737-1826), was born in Germany, presumably coming to this country in 1739 with his father. David in the year 1757 went to sea on a privateering voyage in the ship King of Prussia, which cruised to the West Indies, taking several French prizes and being in two engagements. A return was made to New York in April, 1758, after being at sea ten months. David Grim left again in December, 1758, on the General Wolfe, for four weeks more of privateering.

Claes Jacobse Groesbeck (1624——), supposedly the son of Jacob of Groesbeek, a place near Nijmegen in Holland, arrived in Albany, N. Y., at an early date. In a deposition of October 10, 1696, he said he was then about seventy-two years old, but it is not known just when he reached this country. In 1662 he was in the trade of carpenter. He had in 1684 a house and lot on the west side of Pearl Street, second north of Maiden Lane, Albany. His will, made January 3, 1706-7, mentioned his wife Elizabeth and seven children. Claes Jacobse Groesbeck is supposed to have been identical with Claes Jacobse Rotterdam, which is borne out by certain entries in the records of the Albany Dutch Reformed Church, although the two signatures are dissimiliar in various deeds.

Louis Guion (1654-1725) was a Huguenot from either Mauzé en Aunis, a village about twenty-three miles east of La Rochelle, France, or from St. Martin en Ré. The family tradition is that his son Louis, who was twelve years old in 1698, according to the New Rochelle census, was born at sea. This would make his arrival in New York in 1686 or 1687. In 1690 he bought land in New Rochelle, N. Y., and had a house there in 1696. Letters of Denization were granted to him in 1695. His will is dated October 8, 1725, and he died shortly afterwards. On August 21, 1694, a Louis Guion of Mauzé and his wife Marie Morin, presented their son Louis for baptism in the French Church of London, England, and there was doubtless a relationship between this family and the arrivals in America.

Ezekiel Halsted (1738-1805) one of a line of four generations of the name living in Rye, N. Y., served in 1775 during the War of the Revolution, as a Second Lieutenant in Capt. Robert Bloomer's Company of the Second Regiment, Westchester County Militia. After the Revolution he presented to the Committee on Safety an account of his expense in supporting fifty-one persons impoverished by the War. He was a leader in the Presbyterian Church of Rye of which his father and son were also trustees. He is buried in the old Blind Brook Cemetery of Rye.

Robert Hicks came from London in the ship Fortune, which followed the Mayflower, with the second company of Pilgrims and arrived at Plymouth on November 11, 1621. He had been a leather-dresser in Bermondsey and had married in England in 1596 Margaret Morgan, by whom he had four children. She died in 1607 and he married secondly in 1610 Margaret Winslow and had four more children. His wife and her own children followed him to America in the ship Ann, which reached Plymouth in June 1622. The family settled in Duxbury, Mass., and Robert died in Plymouth, March 24, 1647. John Hicks, his second son, was born in London in 1606 and came to America in 1635. He had previously married Horod Long. They lived about three years at Weymouth, Mass., then moving to Newport, R. I., where they had a disagreement and John was separated from his wife by "the authority" and went alone to Hempstead in 1642, taking, it is said, much of her considerable property. She later married George Gardener and became a Friend, for which she was whipped in Boston. Stephen Hicks followed his brother John to Long Island, and later John's three children left their mother to join him. Stephen lived at Little Neck and died without having married. John was in Flushing as early as 1645, when he was one of the Patentees of that town. He was a representative from Flushing to the Conventions of 1653 called by Stuyvesant in New Amsterdam. John went to Hempstead and is mentioned in the patent of 1666, being styled Justice of the Peace. After the divorce of his first wife he married Rachel, widow of Josias Starr. There were no children by this marriage. John Hicks died in May, 1672, leaving but one son, Thomas, born in 1640, probably in Weymouth. Thomas Hicks secured 4,000 acres from Gov. Nichols at Little Neck. He was a Captain in the Militia. He lived over one hundred years and left more than three hundred descendants.

William Hill (1751-1826) was born in the County of Antrim, Ireland, November 15, 1751, and was the younger son of a Church of England clergyman. He emigrated from Londonderry, May 20, 1773, and arrived in New York in the July following. He married Alethea Carmer in 1786. He was prominent in commercial and charitable life during the Revolution and in the period immediately thereafter; was Trustee of the New York Hospital and one of the earliest shareholders of the New York Society Library.

Johannes Hohn (Hone, Hoan, Hoen) (1721——), the first ancestor of the Hone family in New York, was a "Palatine," who at the age of 18 years arrived in Philadelphia on August 27, 1739, on the ship Samuel from Rotterdam. The date of his death is unknown, and the last mention of him that has been found is in 1749. New York Lutheran Church records tell us that "Johann Hahn Y. M. (young man), from Philadelphia" was married on October 25, 1740, to Magdalena Klotzen, a widow. We are further told by these records that Johann Philip, a son of these parents, was baptized May 1, 1743. Johann Philip, son of Johann Hahn (Haan, Haen), is beyond any reasonable doubt identical with that Philip Hone (1743-1798), who in 1763 married Hester Bourdet, who was of French ancestry. In 1759, when in his 17th year he enlisted in the Provincial Troops, and at that time he had already adopted the name of Philip Hone. His sister, Magdelena Haan, married Hendrick Will in 1761. His sister, Catherine Haan, married Philip Jacob Oswald in 1767. John Hone (1764-1832) and Philip Hone (1780-1851), the Mayor, sons of Philip Hone and Hester Bourdet, were grandsons of the immigrant ancestor.

Edward Howell was the son of Henry Howell, of Marsh Gibbon, County Bucks, England, who died in July, 1635. Edward Howell disposed of considerable estates in Bucks County, including the Manor of Westbury, and came over to Boston in 1639, where he was a freeman on March 14, 1639/40. He early removed to Lynn, Mass., where he had a grant of five hundred acres. During the winter of 1639-1640 a new settlement on Long Island was projected, of which he seems to have been the leader. Early in 1640 he, with others, under an agreement with Lord Stirling's agent, William Farret, endeavored to make a settlement at Cow Neck, Long Island, but were driven off by the Dutch Government of Kieft, and proceeded to the eastern end of Long Island, where, in April, 1640, the commencement of the town of Southampton was made. On May 20, 1640, Edward Howell was chosen the first Magistrate and held office alone until 1646. He was one of three Magistrates, 1647-1653, 1663 and 1664, and Representative to the Hartford Colony, 1650, 1653, and 1663. In 1662 he was a Deputy. He died at Southampton, L. I., in 1655. His first wife, Frances, died in 1630, leaving seven children, and by his second wife, Eleanor, he had two more. One of his sons, Major John Howell (1624-1690), was a distinguished citizen of Southampton, and a daughter, Margaret, married Rev. John Moore, a clergyman of note.

Melchert Claessen (Kater) came from Amsterdam to New Amsterdam, but the date of his arrival is uncertain. He was presumably the first of the family later known as Keator (Kater, Cater) to settle here. However, in 1647, the executors of a Claes Cater, possibly a Dutch Trader, living in Holland, applied in New Amsterdam for authority to collect debts due the estate at New Haven, Stamford, Milford, and Long Island, and the names and dates would make it a reasonable speculation that this was the father of Melchert Claessen. Melchert first appears in the records on December 28, 1671, when, as a soldier at Fort James (formerly Fort Amsterdam) he was on trial before a court martial, which banished him from the garrison and fort. Still, in 1674, he was married in the Church of New Amsterdam to Susanna Richards "widow of the Fort." Soon afterwards they went up the Hudson to Esopus (Kingston) where they settled, later removing to the village of Marbletown nearby where for several generations the family resided. In 1676 his name appears on the petition of several inhabitants of Esopus for a minister, so he had evidently become somewhat active in church matters. It was probably Melchert (Melchior) Claessen who appeared as Melier Celeson on a list of the militia company at Esopus in 1687. He was living as late as 1701, when he and his wife acted as witnesses at the baptism of a child of a friend. His son, Niclaes Melchertse Kater, in 1692 served in defense of the Albany frontier against the French, in the Company of Major Peter Schuyler, and in 1715 was sergeant of the Foot Company of Militia of Marbletown, under the command of Captain William Nottingham, in the Regiment of Ulster County under the command of Colonel Jacob Rutsen, which saw service against the Indians.

Edward Ketcham was in Ipswich, Massachusetts, in 1635 and a freeman there in 1637. It is not known whence he came nor the date of his arrival. With him in Ipswich was his son, John Ketcham. Edward had land in Southold, Long Island, in 1654, and John appeared at Setauket, in the present Brookhaven Township, L. I., in the year 1648. John later moved to Newtown, L. I., presumably in 1668. In 1665 he was a representative for Huntington at the Hempstead Assembly. He was a grantee in the first English patent for Huntington in 1666. In Newtown he was a Constable in 1669, and otherwise a man of influence to the time of his death in 1697. His wife was named Bethia and he had three children. His son, Lieutenant John Ketcham, married Susan ——— and had six children, born in Huntington. He sold land in Southold on September 29, 1666, possibly that formerly owned by his grandfather. His death came in 1697.

Hendrick Hendrickszen Kip, so far as is positively known, was the first of his name in this country, coming prior to 1643, with his wife, probably named Tryntje, and five children, all born in Amsterdam. He used a coat of arms in New Amsterdam, where it was painted on the window of the Dutch Church and cut in stone over the door of one of the family's houses, and was probably a man of good family, but the tradition that he was the son of Ruloff de Kype, of an old French family, is doubtful, chiefly because of his patronymic. In 1643 he was living in New Amsterdam on property he owned east of the fort on "Brugh," the present Bridge Street. By trade he was a tailor. A man of independence and courage, he was so disgusted by Governor Kieft's wholesale murder of the Indians in 1643 that he publicly advocated sending the Director back to Holland to be hanged. Philippe du Trieux, the Marshal, reported that Kip was the only man who would not attend the general assembly to discuss peace with the Indians, held on August 30, 1645. After Kieft had sailed in 1647 on the voyage which was to be his last, Hendrick Hendricksen became very prominent. He was one of the Nine Men in 1647, 1649, and 1650; a Schepen in 1656, Great Burgher in 1657, and Magistrate in 1660. He is last mentioned in the records of 1665. He probably had eight children. Two of his sons, Jacob and Isaac, became influential citizens. Kip's Bay, on the upper part of Manhattan Island, and the Manor of Kipsburg, on the Hudson River, near the present Rhinebeck, were possessions of members of this family.

Jacob Lansing was commissioned Colonel of the First Regiment, Albany County Militia, on October 20, 1775, and served until March 3, 1780. He commanded his regiment at the Battles of Stillwater, Saratoga, and elsewhere. He was a member of the Committee of Safety, Albany, N. Y., in 1775, and its chairman in 1777.

Jean La Tourette was a refugee from Béarn, fleeing for religious freedom. He was a "natif d'Osse en Béarn" and first appears on record in New York on July 16, 1693, when he was married in the French Church to Marie Mercereau. They had at least three children baptised in New York. They seem to have moved to Staten Island and were members of the French Church there.

Richard Latting came from England to Boston, Mass., in 1638 or 1639, accompanied by his wife and one or more children and settled at Concord in 1644. In 1653, with his son Josiah, then 12 years old, he removed to Hempstead, L. I. In 1660 he purchased a house and tract at Oyster Bay and removed thither. In 1669 he purchased other lands in Oyster Bay from the Matinecock Indians and these lands with others afterward purchased from the Indians by his son Josiah Latting covered the present tract or hamlet of Lattingtown, between Dosoris and Matinecock, some of which property still remains in the family.

William Lawrence (1622-1680), was the third son of Thomas and Joan (Antrobus) Lawrence, born at St. Albans, Hertfordshire, England, and baptized there on July 27, 1622. He was brought to New England in the ship Planter by his step-father, John Tuttell. His older brother John Lawrence, was with him, and another, Thomas Lawrence, seems to have come later. The early life of William Lawrence in New England is unknown. He seems to have been at Plymouth and later at Ipswich, going to Long Island probably about 1644. His mother and step-father apparently went back to England. On October 10, 1645, William, with his brother John, were among the 18 original proprietors and patentees of Flushing, L. I. He seems to have lived there practically all the rest of his life. He was appointed a Magistrate in 1655 and in 1656 was made Presiding Magistrate. In 1657-8 he protested in a letter to Peter Stuyvesant at the encroachments of Hempstead upon the Flushing boundaries. In 1662, with his brothers John and Thomas, and his father-in-law, Richard Smith, he is taxed for property at Newtown. In 1655 he was Captain in the Queen's County Militia; in 1673, Schout or Sheriff of Flushing; commanded the "Flushing Foote Companie" at the surrender of New Amsterdam to the Dutch in 1673; and in 1675 was Justice of the Peace. On December 18, 1666, he was fined £15 for seditious words and directed to apologize to the Court. In 1674 either he or his son of the same name had a house valued at $2,000 on the east side of Broadway, between Beaver and Wall Streets. He died early in 1680, his estate being administered on March 25th of that year. It amounted to £4,432. He had a first wife whose name is unknown, by whom he had two sons, William and John. By a license dated March 4, 1664, he married secondly Elizabeth, daughter of Richard ("Bull") Smith, the founder of Smithtown. She married as her second husband in 1681 the Hon. Captain Philip Carteret, Governor of the Province of East and West Jerseys, and removed to Elizabeth Towne with her seven children. He died in 1682 but she retained possession of the Government house for a year later and made considerable trouble for the local authorities. She was a woman of strong will and seems to have acted as Governor at times.

She married a third time in 1685 Colonel Richard Townley, one of the suite of the Earl of Effingham, and member of the Councils of New Jersey and New York. One of the sons of William and Elizabeth Lawrence, by name Joseph, by unvarying family tradition married Mary, a daughter of Colonel Townley by his earlier wife. The church records have been burned and no legal proof exists of the connection, but the fact would probably never have been questioned if various misinformed members of the Lawrence family had not tried to recover a supposedly vast Townley estate in England. The majority of authorities, even since the court trial, have conceded the strong possibility of this marriage.

John Lawton (1630-1690) was an early citizen of Suffield, Connecticut. He died on December 19, 1690, and his widow, Benedicta, on November 18, 1692. His grandson, Jacob, adopted the name Christopher. He was by profession a lawyer and served as representative. Both his sons moved to Leicester, Massachusetts, and their descendants into the State of New York.

Jan Lequie (——1713), originally L'Escuyer, and now spelled Luquer and Luqueer, sailed from Amsterdam in the ship Brownfish in 1658. He was entered on the ship's register as being "from Paris." He settled in Bushwyck, Kings County, where he was a miller, an elder in the church, and generally a man of standing. In the Indian War of 1660 he served at Esopus in the Company of Dirck Schmitt. He married Rachel Dirks in 1663. In his will, dated September 13, 1705, and proved September 8, 1713, he leaves most of his estate to his wife during her life, but gives one son, Johannes, land in Newtown and was able to bequeath £225 to each of seven children. His son, Abraham, served in the Kings County Militia in 1715.

Robert Livingston, Jr., (1647-1725) came to New York in 1696. He was a nephew of Robert who acquired Livingston Manor. He was Town Clerk of Albany, 1699-1707; Mayor of Albany, 1710-1719; member of the Provincial Assembly, and Commissioner of Indian affairs. He was a Lieutenant on the Expedition to Canada of 1711. He was Lieutenant-Colonel, in the Revolutionary War, of Webb's Additional Regiment and served under General Putnam on the Hudson, in command of Colonel Webb's regiment at the battle of Quaker Hill, Rhode Island, being praised for gallantry by General Greene in 1778. His New York home was on Broadway. He married, in 1697, Margaretta Schuyler, daughter of Colonel Pieter Schuyler, a niece of his uncle Robert's wife.

Peter Lott was a Huguenot, emigrating from France, near the River Lotte, in 1652 and settling in Flatbush, being one of the original patentees. His son, Engelbert Lott, settled at New Castle, Delaware, and took an oath of allegiance to William Penn. But the unhealthiness of the place made him return to Long Island. This he did in 1682 and purchased two acres of land near the present Erasmus Hall. He was High Sheriff of the County of Kings in 1698.

William Ludlam (——1665) was born in Matlock, Derbyshire, England, and is supposed to have been one of the three brothers who came to America about 1640, landing at Boston, Massachusetts. That same year William Ludlam appears at Southampton, Long Island. He established a flour mill and became both farmer and miller. His will, the first recorded in the Surrogate's office in New York City, was dated April 27, 1665, proved on June 7th and recorded on October 5th of the same year. He had a son, William, who arrived with his sister, Grace, from England in the ship Triall at Boston in July, 1648. William Ludlam, Jr., settled, first, at Southampton, and afterwards at Huntington, Long Island. His son, John, brought suit in 1701 to recover a family estate in Matlock, Derbyshire, and from the depositions submitted then it is learned that William Ludlam, Sr., died at Southampton, that his wife's name was Clemence, that William, Jr., was about twenty years old when he left England with his sister, Grace, in May, 1648, and that William, Jr., died at Huntington, L. I.

Gabriel Ludlow (1663-1736) was born at Castle Cary, Somerset, England, on November 2, 1663, and landed in New York November 24, 1694. His grandfather, Thomas Ludlow, was the younger brother of Gabriel Ludlow, Receiver of the Duchy of Lancaster during the reign of Charles I, and of Roger Ludlow, who became Deputy Governor of Massachusetts in 1634, and who married Mary Endicott. His father was cousin to Cromwell's General, Sir Edmund Ludlow, who was one of King Charles I's judges. At the Restoration the family were compelled to flee from England. Arrived in the Colony, Gabriel Ludlow at once entered upon a successful mercantile career and was the builder and owner of vessels in the coasting trade. His place of business was in Queen (now Pearl) Street. His residence was in Maiden Lane. He was Clerk of the New York House of Assembly from 1699 until his death. As a devout churchman, he was named as vestryman in the Royal Charter of Trinity Church, and served as such from 1697 to 1704, and as Clerk of the Vestry from 1700 until his death in 1736. His son, Gabriel, was a member of the same vestry for twenty-seven years, and his son, Henry, for twelve years. His remains rest in the family vault under the present Trinity Church.

David Mason (1726-1794) was a native of Boston and is best known as a soldier. In 1763 he organized an artillery company, of which he was Captain. During the Revolution he served as Lieutenant-Colonel of Artillery Artificers and Director of Ordnance, and is said to have been the first salaried appointee of Massachusetts during the War. He was stationed at Springfield, but his duties carried him into New York State. He was a member of a Massachusetts Committee of Safety. His talents as an electrical investigator and an artist are said to have been great.

Charles McKnight (1750-1791), born in Cranberry, N. J., October 10, 1750, was the son of a Scotch-Irish Presbyterian clergyman, and a trustee of Princeton University, his grandfather, also a clergyman, having come to America in 1740. He studied medicine and surgery, and in 1777 was appointed Senior Surgeon of the Flying Hospital of the Middle Department of the Continental Army, later being advanced to the rank of Chief Physician and Surgeon, Continental Hospital Department. At the close of the war he settled in New York City and became Professor of Surgery and Anatomy in Columbia College. He married Mary, only daughter of General John Morin Scott, of New York City.

Cornelis Melyn, a name spelled also in contemporary records as Meleyn, was baptized at Antwerp, on September 17, 1600. His parents both died in 1606 and guardians were appointed for their young son on November 13th of that year. He stayed at school until January, 1613, when he was apprenticed to a tailor, a trade in which he probably continued up to September 15, 1618, when he obtained a certificate of good character and announced his intention of seeing foreign countries. He did not leave Holland for some years later, being in Antwerp in 1626, and marrying in 1627, at Amsterdam, Jannetje Adriaens, of Myert. A daughter, Cornelia, was baptized at Amsterdam in 1628 and a son, Cornelis, there in 1633. On May 12, 1638, he sailed from the Texel as supercargo of Het Wapen van Norwegen and arrived at New Amsterdam on August 4, 1638. As he had another son, Isaac, baptized at Amsterdam on November 21, 1638, it is probable his wife and family remained in Holland. He himself must have soon returned to Europe, as Kiliaen van Rensselaer, in a letter of May 12, 1639, referred to him as being "in France." On July 3, 1640, Melyn sailed on an undetermined voyage and was captured by the Dunkirk pirates on August 13, 1640. He was in Amsterdam again on May 6, 1641, and on August 20, 1641, arrived at New Amsterdam on den Eyckenboom. He came with an order from Holland granting him the whole of Staten Island, New York, except for one farm previously allotted. In 1642 he had full Patroon rights. He was one of the "Eight Men" in 1643 and joined with the others, in particular with Jochem Pietersen (Kuyter), in addressing on October 24th of that year a petition to the Dutch West India Company, complaining of the condition of affairs in the colony, Melyn stating for himself that Staten Island alone remained unattacked by the Indians. Director Kieft, who had already had trouble with Jochem Pietersen as the head of the dissolved "Twelve Men," informed his successor, Stuyvesant, that he had been libelled by the "Eight Men," indicating Melyn and Kuyter as the leaders. Stuyvesant arrived on May 11, 1647, and at once tried to suppress Melyn and Kuyter. On June 22, 1647, the two men sent their "Defence" to the Director, stating among other points to their credit that they had brought much live stock from Holland. Stuyvesant succeeded, however, in banishing them both "for insult, defamation, and falsehood," Melyn for seven years and Kuyter for three, together with the imposition of heavy fines and the confiscation of Melyn's property grants, he owning beside all of Staten Island a tract at the present junction of Stone, Pearl and Broad Streets, New York City. The exiles sailed on August 16, 1647, on the Princess Amelia, the ship which had brought Stuyvesant in May. On the same vessel was one of Melyn's sons, Kieft, the returning Director, Domine Bogardus, and other important citizens. Jan Claessen Bol, the Captain, navigated badly, and the ship was wrecked in the British Channel, near Swansea, Wales, on September 27, 1647. Kieft, Bogardus, Melyn's boy, and many others were lost, but Melyn and Kuyter were saved by floating wreckage. They spent three days hunting for the papers which were to prove their case in Holland, finding one box. The West India Company "greatly regretted that while so many fine men were lost, two rebellious bandits should survive to trouble the Company with their complaints." Melyn and Kuyter ignored the Company and took their case directly to the States General. William, Prince of Orange, wrote Stuyvesant on May 19, 1648, that they were permitted to return and must be unmolested. Early in 1649 the two are found back in New Amsterdam. Kuyter lived quietly on the Graft (Broad Street) until he was murdered by Indians in 1654. Melyn found things none too pleasant in New Netherland. Stuyvesant said he would have hanged him if he had thought he intended to appeal to Holland, and wrote the States General on August 10, 1649, that Melyn had returned through New England "parading" the writ of mandamus to the English, to the discredit of the Company. His Secretary, van Tienhoven, joined him in writing to the States General against Melyn. The friends of Kuyter and Melyn followed with a letter of defence. Melyn himself wrote in 1650 a petition stating that Stuyvesant had treated his papers with disrespect and he was not allowed to attend to business, although "burdened with six children." He finally went to Holland again in 1650, carrying his own papers and a petition of the "Nine Men." Stuyvesant became alarmed and sent van Tienhoven after him. Melyn sailed back on August 10, 1650, on the Fortuyn, arriving on December 19, 1650, after a difficult, perilous voyage. Stuyvesant was still unrelenting, refusing to allow the public officers to serve him, accusing him of smuggling, declining permission to his son-in-law to engage in trading, and generally terrifying Melyn so that he did not dare leave Staten Island. Another protest went from Melyn to the States General in 1652. His estate at "the Manhatans" was ordered seized and confiscated in 1653. In 1656 he was captured by the Indians, and escaped, only to find his Staten Island estate devastated. He gave up New Netherland then and went with his son, Jacob, and perhaps the rest of his family, to New Haven, Connecticut, where the two men took the oath of allegiance to the English on April 7, 1657. Early in 1659 he was in Holland again and on June 13, 1659, surrendered his Patroonship of Staten Island. He thought he had sold his rights only and not his land, and his widow and children tried in vain to recover some of the property in 1674. Melyn sailed back on de Liefde, arriving in New Amsterdam on March 5, 1660. He was in New Amsterdam in October, 1660, and as late as May, 1661, but continued to make his residence in New Haven, where he is last heard of in 1662 and 1663, the date of his death being unknown.

John Moore (1658-1732), of London, seems to have gone to Charleston, South Carolina, in 1680. There he was Secretary of the Province, 1682; Receiver General, 1683; and member of the Governor's Council, 1684. In 1685 he married Lady Rebecca Axtell, daughter of the Landgrave Daniel Axtell, and granddaughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Daniel Axtell, Governor of Kilkenny, Ireland. Between 1687 and 1690, John Moore moved to Philadelphia, Pa. There he held office as Crown Advocate and Deputy Judge, 1695; Attorney General of the Province, 1698-1700; Registrar General of Pennsylvania, 1693-1703; Registrar of Wills, 1701-1704; and Collector of Her Majesty's Customs for the Port of Philadelphia from June 24, 1703, or 1704, until his death on November 25, 1732. He was buried in Christ's Church, Philadelphia, of which he was a founder and vestryman. His wife was buried in St. Peter's Church in Chester, Pa. Their eldest child was John Moore, born in South Carolina in 1686, who made his home at "Moore's-Folly-on-the-Hudson," near West Point, and at "White Hall," New York City. He was a member of the Colonial and King's Council for the Province of New York, 1745-1749; Colonel Commanding His Majesty's New York City Regiment of Foot, 1738; and Vestryman and Warden of Trinity Church, 1715-1728. He married, in 1714, Frances Lambert (1692-1782), of a Huguenot family. Their home, known as White Hall, on Moore and Front Streets, New York City, was formerly the property of Peter Stuyvesant. From it is named Whitehall Street. John Moore died in 1749, leaving a large estate in New York and Philadelphia. His son, Thomas Moore (1722-1784), M. A. (Westminster), a vestryman of Trinity Church, 1750-1762, 1779-1784, married, in 1744, Elizabeth (1728-1805), daughter of William Channing, of Dorchester, England, Agent of the British Navy at New York. Thomas Moore, like all his family, was an uncompromising Tory. His son was the Right Rev. Richard Channing Moore, M. A., M. D., D. D., (1762-1841), Rector of churches at Rye, N. Y.; Staten Island, N. Y.; New York City; and Richmond, Va.; and Second Bishop of the Diocese of Virginia, serving for twenty-seven years.

Stephen Moulton (1734-1819) served as Lieutenant-Colonel of the Stafford Connecticut Militia and of the Twenty-second Connecticut Regiment. He was in service at the time of the "Lexington Alarm." At New York City, on September 15, 1776, he was taken prisoner, being confined in the Old Sugar-house prison and not exchanged until March 2, 1777. About 1781 he settled in Floyd, N. Y., where he died in 1819.

John Murphy, a Protestant native of the north of Ireland, came to America in 1761 as a non-commissioned officer in the British Army. After completing his military service in Canada, he came to New York in 1767, where he married and lived until after the War of the Revolution, in which he served on the American side in Colonel John Lamb's Regiment of Artillery. After the war he started for Canada as a bearer of dispatches and a trader in furs, and is "supposed to have been killed by the Indians in the North Woods."

Simon Nathan (1750-1830) was a merchant, residing in New York City. He came to New York from England before the American Revolution. Grace Seixas, his wife, was a native of Newport, R. I.

Matthias Nicoll (1626-1687) was a member of an old and honorable family of Islip, Northamptonshire, England. He was born about 1626, the son of a clergyman of the Established Church, and graduated from Cambridge University, becoming a barrister of the Inner Temple. He married, in England, Abigail Johns. On September 1, 1663, Samuel Maverick, one of the Commissioners appointed under the Duke of York's patent, wrote to the Earl of Clarendon, Lord Chancellor, asking that Matthias Nicoll, whose talents he recommended highly, be appointed Secretary to the Commissioner. This appointment was made and Nicoll was, moreover, designated as the Secretary of the future Province of New York before leaving England. The expedition sailed from Portsmouth in May, 1664, commanded by Colonel Richard Nicolls. It was once thought that Matthias Nicoll was a nephew of Colonel Richard, but it now seems certain there was no relationship between them. Matthias Nicoll held the rank of Captain in the British military forces when New Amsterdam was captured. In the Province of New York he held many important positions; Secretary of the Province, 1664-1680; member of Governor's Council, 1667-1680; Delegate to and Speaker of the First and Second Provincial Assemblies, 1683-1684; Judge of Court of Admiralty, 1686; President and Secretary of Court of Sessions; Mayor of New York, 1671, and first Judge of Court of Oyer and Terminer. Early in 1665 an election of Deputies from Long Island was ordered, who met in Convention at Hempstead, when Matthias Nicoll, as Secretary of the Province, promulgated a code of laws for the future government of the Province. Known as the "Duke's Laws," and governing the Colony until 1683, they were mainly the work of Matthias Nicoll.

Matthias Nicoll purchased property at Cow Neck and Plandome, now Manhasset, Queens County, Long Island, for which patents were granted him in 1670 and 1677. The town of Hempstead gave him two hundred acres for assisting them legally and he had in all twelve hundred acres. His home was on Cow Neck. The whole of this property went to his son, William, who sold the Plandome estate in 1718. Matthias Nicoll died on December 22, 1687, and was buried at Cow Neck, where his wife also is interred.

William Nicoll (1657-1723), the son of Matthias, married Anne (1665-1715), daughter of Jeremias van Rensselaer and widow of Kiliaen van Rensselaer, of Albany. Margaret (1662-1718), Matthias' daughter, married Richard Floyd. These were the only two surviving children, three others having been drowned in the East River.

William Nicoll came to this country with his father in 1664, but later returned to England with Sir Edmund Andros and served in the English army, in Flanders. He nearly died from illness and resigned to come back to New York. He was trained as a lawyer by his father, a profession in which he became eminent. In 1683 he was Clerk of Queens County and in 1687 Attorney-General of the Province. In 1683 he had purchased from the Indians a large tract, ten miles square, on the south side of Long Island, for which Governor Dongan granted a patent on December 5, 1684. More land was added in 1688 and 1697, and the place called Islip, after the Nicolls' home in England, and the name is still preserved in the village and township of Islip.

At the time of Jacob Leisler's Rebellion William Nicoll actively opposed the Leisler faction, calling their leader "a German upstart" and refusing on demand to surrender his commission as Justice of the Peace. On January 20, 1689, Leisler threw into prison Nicoll and Colonel Nicholas Bayard, another citizen too outspoken against him. They were incarcerated for fourteen months and only released upon the arrival from England of Governor Sloughter, in March, 1691. Sloughter at once appointed Nicoll to his Council and made him a King's Counsel in the prosecution that led to the hanging of Leisler. In 1695 Nicoll left for England, with Brooke, another member of the Council, being sent by the Colonial Assembly to urge the government to enforce the contributions allotted to the other Colonies for defence against the French, which fell unequally on New York. Nicoll was allowed £1,000 for his services. On the passage out both Councilors were captured by a French privateer, robbed and carried to a prison at St. Malo. After some months an exchange was effected and they reached England on November 1, 1695. Lord Bellomont, who succeeded Fletcher as Governor, accused Fletcher, and Nicoll as his chief aid, of irregularities, but the case seemed without justification and was never brought to trial. In the Assembly election of 1699 Nicoll was conspicuous as a leader of the anti-Bellomont party. In 1701 he was elected to the Assembly from Suffolk County and again in 1702. He was chosen Speaker and served as such until 1718 and as a member until his death in 1723. He was counsel in notable law suits and one of the first vestrymen of Trinity Church, New York (1698-1702). In 1685 he was appointed by Governor Dongan, Lord of the Manor of Martha's Vineyard, as Steward thereof. William Nicoll also owned one-half of Shelter Island. His will, dated March 17, 1718-19, was proved August 27, 1723.

Alexander Ogsbury (1736-1818), a name spelled also Oxbury, Auxberry, and Augsburg, was born in Germany and came to New York City when fifteen years old. In 1757 he married Abigail Adlington (1738-1781). By trade he was a cordwainer. He was admitted as a Freeman in 1765 and his name appears in the poll-list of 1769 and the Directory of 1786.

Andries Adrianse Onderdonk was a native of New Castle, Delaware, and must have been born before 1653. He appeared in Flatbush, Long Island, as early as 1672, when he purchased land there. About 1685 he removed to Jamaica, L. I., and died there before August 13, 1687. He married at Flatbush, on November 11, 1683, Maria, daughter of Dirck Janse Van der Vliet. She married, as her second husband, Jacob Janse Vanderbilt, in 1687. The eldest son of Andries was Adrian (1684-1764), who was baptized at New Utrecht, L. I., and died at Nyack, N. Y. His name appears as a "train Souldier" in a return of Captain Thomas Tredwell's train band, dated Hempstead, L. I., September 17, 1715.

Isaac Paris, a merchant in the Mohawk Valley, served as a member of the Committee of Safety of Tryon County, N. Y., during the Revolution and died in battle under Herkimer in 1777.

William Peck (1601-1694) was one of the founders of New Haven, Connecticut, arriving in the spring of 1638. He probably came in the Company of Governor Theophilus Eaton and Rev. John Davenport, reaching Boston in 1637. He was born in London, or its vicinity, in 1601 and married there in 1622. His son, Jeremiah, was his only child at the time of his emigration. He was one of the original proprietors of New Haven, signing the fundamental Agreement or Constitution of 1639. He was admitted a freeman in 1640. His occupation was that of a merchant. In the First (Center) Congregational Church he was a deacon from 1659 to his death, and he was a Trustee and Treasurer of the Colony Collegiate School (Hopkins). His wife, Elizabeth, died in 1683, and he subsequently married Sarah, widow of William Holt. He died on October 4, 1694. Later generations moved to Rye, New York.

Phillip Pinckney (Pinkney) was born in Norfolk, England, and settled first in Fairfield, Conn., in 1649, and then, in June, 1664, by a grant from Thomas Pell, became one of the ten Patentees of the town of East Chester. This grant being confirmed by a Royal Patent in 1666 by Richard Nicolls, Governor of New York. He was a lineal descendant of the Pinckneys of Tatterset, Pinckney Manor, Norfolk County, England. The Pinckneys took an active part in the affairs of the new township of East Chester, and in the founding of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and according to tradition presented the land to the church embracing the present churchyard and church green. There is a memorial window there now in memory of the original Patentee, Phillip.

Jacques Poillon is supposed to have reached Flatbush about 1671, later appearing on Staten Island. Baird thinks the family Waldensian, one among others emigrating from Holland from 1663 on. Jacques Poillon is first mentioned publicly in Staten Island when Governor Leisler appointed him a Justice for Richmond County on December 14, 1689. He is frequently mentioned from that time to 1703 as buying land, but after 1703 nothing seems to be known about him.

Arent Prall (Praal) (——1725), probably came from Holland in 1660, settling on Staten Island. His will, dated October 14, 1721, and proved November 4, 1725, mentions Peter Prall as his eldest son and gives his wife's name as Mackelenor. He left to Peter "my wheelwright tools and also 115 acres of land at Arckolds Town in the County of Richmond." Bequests of several hundred pounds sterling would seem to indicate some wealth. The will of Peter Biyon, dated 1699 and proved 1702, mentions his daughter, Maria, then deceased, as the wife of Arent Prall, so she must have been his first wife and the mother of his eldest son, Peter. Peter (1655-1748) was a Captain of Militia, stationed at Blazing Star, Staten Island, in 1700. His name appears with his father's among the signers of the Petition of Grievances of the Protestants of New York, addressed to William III, in 1701.

David Provoost (1608-1657) was of a family generally supposed to have been originally French. William Prévost, a Protestant, is believed to have fled to Holland from France, marrying there in 1574, having a son, Johannes, who married in Amsterdam in 1601, and had, among other children, David, who was born in Amsterdam on August 10, 1608, and came to New Amsterdam in New Netherland in 1624, perhaps with the Walloon Colony enrolled by Jesse de Forest. David was back in Holland in 1626, and in 1630 married there Margaretta, daughter of Gillis Ten Waert, a man of wealth, who paid his daughter an annuity as late as 1700. They reached New Amsterdam in 1634. The Vingboom map of New Amsterdam of 1639, showing the bouwery occupied by David, plainly calls him "Davit the Provoost," indicating that he was the Provost or Marshal. This would seem to show that his title may have become his surname, and is contemporary evidence of some weight. David Provoost was a man of considerable education for the times, speaking Dutch, French, English and Latin, and he later became a schoolmaster. He held important offices, such as Commissary of Provisions and Tobacco Inspector, one of the Nine Men, Notary, Magistrate for Breuckelen (Brooklyn), including Midwout and Amersfoort, Sheriff of Breuckelen, Member Governor's Council and of the Assembly, and Commissioner to investigate the conspiracy of the Dutch and Indians against the English. Perhaps his most important service was as Commissary of Fort Good Hope. In 1640 he commanded about fifty men sent to take possession of the Fresh River (the Connecticut), and he built near the present Hartford this fort and a small settlement of houses, serving there until 1647 and defending himself against the attacks of the English with distinction. While one of the Nine Men, in 1652, the sessions were held in his schoolhouse. In 1639 he bought land at the present junction of Pearl and Fulton Streets and he later (1641) built on Broad Street and still later on Long Island. He died on May 12, 1657, leaving a widow, the date of whose death is unknown.

David Provoost, Jr., (1670-1724) was the third in descent. He was engaged in trade as a merchant and was prominent in the public service of the City and Province of New York. He was Alderman of the Dock Ward, Chamberlain and Treasurer of the City, became Mayor in 1699, was a Deputy Recorder in 1700, and Alderman again from 1700 to 1708. In 1700 he was Captain of the Second Regiment of Foot, of which Abraham de Peyster was Colonel. He was a member of the General Assembly from 1699 to 1702, is mentioned as Colonel in 1718, and was Collector of the Duties of Tonnage and Negroes from 1714 to 1724.

John Ridley was born in England of English parents, and early emigrated to the City of New York. His wife, Catherine Ritter, was born in New York, of Dutch parents.

John Roberts (1727-1796) was born at Providence, R. I., in 1727, and emigrated to Amenia, N. Y., in 1750, and from there to Manchester, Vt., about 1763. He served in the Old French War and as a private in Colonel Seth Warner's Regiment of Additional Continental Infantry, from February 19, 1777, for three years.

Willem Jansen Romen (Roome) is supposed to have been a Hollander, coming to this country about 1660, accompanied by his wife and son, Jan Willemsen. When Jan Willemsen married in New York in 1684 the record states that he came from Werckendam, which is a Province of North Brabant. Another son, Pieter Willemsen, married Hester Van Gelder, of New York, on November 26, 1684, when it was stated in the record that he had been born in Goemoenipa, the present Communipaw, N. J. Evidently the arrival of the family took place shortly before his birth. The father, Willem Jansen, "widower of Jannetje Jans," married again in 1676 Marritje Jans, widow of Jan Theuniszen. They then lived at the Fresh Water, the present Roosevelt Street.

Walter Rutherfurd (1723-1804) was one of the nineteen children of Sir John Rutherfurd and Elizabeth Cairncross, of Edgerston, Roxboroughshire, Scotland, and was born at his parent's home in Scotland on December 29, 1723. He entered the Royal Navy when fifteen years old, serving until 1746, when he went into the Army as an officer in the Royal Scots Regiment, and was paymaster in the campaigns of Flanders and Germany. At the outbreak of the French and Indian War of 1756 he left for this country, becoming a Captain of Grenadiers in the Fourth Battalion of the Royal American Regiment. He subsequently became Judge Advocate and Major in the Colonial Army, and received the terms of surrender of Fort Niagara and the keys of the city when Montreal capitulated. In 1760 he retired from active duty and about 1775 received a patent of five thousand acres in New Jersey for his military services. While his sympathies were with the British during the Revolution, he took no active part in the war, remaining on his New Jersey estate. After the declaration of peace he returned to New York City, entering business as an importer, in which he gained considerable wealth. He was President of the St. Andrew's Society, an incorporator and Governor of the New York Hospital, a founder of the Society Library and President of the Agricultural Society. He lived at No. 1 St. George's Street, the site of the Astor House, in 1798, and at 219 Broadway in 1803. He married on December 21, 1758, and died January 10, 1804. His wife was Catherine Alexander, a sister of Major-General William Alexander, of the American Army, who assumed the title of Earl of Sterling. Walter Rutherfurd had two children. His son, John, was a United States Senator and married Helena, daughter of Lewis Morris, the signer. His daughter married Major-General Mathew Clarkson, of the Continental Army. This family of Rutherfurd is quite distinct from the Rutherfords of Connecticut.

Casper Samler appears to have been a resident of the City of New York prior to the year 1780, as in the month of March of that year he purchased a tract of land of some twenty-seven acres, lying between Bloomingdale Road and Fourth Avenue, and extending from about 27th Street in a diagonal line to 30th Street. He also purchased other land in this city and in Westchester County. At his death he left a number of descendants, among them John Samler.

Gideon Schaets (1607-1694) was born at Leerdam, in South Holland, classis of Buren, Gelderland, from a race of Reformed ministers, as son of Bartholomeus Schaets and his first wife, Alida. His father became minister of Tricht, classis of Buren, in 1615 and the son was educated by him and by the learned theologian and later university professor, Gisbertus Voltias. In 1626 young Gideon became tutor of the children of the Count of Treslong, an heir and relative of the Countess of Buren, with whom he traveled to The Hague and in 1630 to Brielle. There he married, in 1634, Agneta Reyniers Moens, Governess of the Count's daughters, and thereupon settled as a schoolmaster at Beert, near Leerdam. As early as 1645 he desired to go to the Dutch colonies and in 1649 he applied for the vacant ministry of Rensselaerswyck. After complete examinations he was ordained as a minister of the Dutch Reformed Church by the Classis of Amsterdam on May 6, 1652, and there, on May 8th, entered into a contract with the patrons of Rensselaerswyck. From there he sailed for New Netherlands with his family on de Blom van Gelderland, and arrived at Rensselaerswyck on July 24, 1652. With the gradual dissolving of patroon influences he became minister of Beverwyck in 1657, which church he served until his death, being at the same time a missionary among the Indians and a teacher. In August, 1683, Godefredus Dellius became his coadjutor, and in the later years he only preached occasionally and served the sacraments. He remarried, as a widower, in August, 1683, at New York, Barentje Hendricks, a widow. He died at Albany on February 27, 1694, in the 87th year of his age and the 42nd year of his ministry and service in Albany, and was buried in the Reformed Church there. His children, all born at Beest, were, Bartholomew, Reynier, Alida and Anna. They all married, and of Alida and Anna descendants are living in this country. From Reynier Schaets, who fell in the Schenectady massacre of 1690, and Catharina Bensing, his wife, through their second son, Bartholomeus Schaets, and his only son, Reynier Schaats, all members of the Skaats family in America descend. The latter married Elsje Schuyler.

Jacob Janse Schermerhorn (1622-1688) is well described upon page 248 of the Record, published in 1905. It now remains to call attention to the wife of this early settler, they having born to this Society very many members. Jannetie Egmont (Van Voorhout), wife of Jacob Janse Schermerhorn, was born in Holland, in 1633. Her father made a contract with Patroon Van Rensselaer, August 25, 1643, and in this document he is referred to as Cornelise Segertse Van Egmont. He sailed for America in September of that year, by Het Wapen Van Rensselaerwyck, with his wife, Brechje Jacobsen, 45 years old, and six children. He was about 44 years of age. The six children were: Cornelis, 22; Claes, 20; Seger, 14; Lysbeth, 16; Jannetie, 10, and Neeltie, 8. In his Will, dated November 22, 1662, the signature appears as Cornelis Segersen Van Voorhout; his wife was living, and in his Will is mentioned his daughter Jannetie, wife of Jacob Schermerhorn. It is probable that though Cornelius Segers undoubtedly came direct from Voorhout to this country, he belonged to the original Egmont family of Holland, from which the town of Egmont takes its name. The appellation, Egmont Schermerhorn, still survives upon the roll of Saint Nicholas.

Jacob Schieffelin (——1746), of a landed family of Weilheim an der Deck, in Germany, was the first of the name in America, but the date of his arrival is uncertain. In 1746, the year of his father's death, Jacob, Jr. (1732-1769), came over to settle in Philadelphia. He married Regina Margaretta Kraften Ritschaurin, in 1756, and had four sons. Jacob Schieffelin, the third, was born in Philadelphia on August 24, 1757. While still a young man he went to Detroit as Secretary of the Province. During the Revolution he served as a Lieutenant in the British Army. He was living in New York in 1780, and on August 16th of that year married in Trinity Church Hannah Lawrence (1758-1838), daughter of John and Ann Burling Lawrence, a noted beauty and a popular poetess. They removed to Montreal in 1783, and later Jacob Schieffelin spent some time in London, leaving his wife in New York. About 1794 he returned to New York and went into business with his brother-in-law, John Burling Lawrence. Five years later they dissolved partnership, as Mr. Schieffelin desired to engage in ship-owning, which Lawrence considered too hazardous. Jacob Schieffelin continued to carry on the firm, which developed into the drug house of Schieffelin & Company. In 1814 he retired, dying in New York on April 16, 1835. He lived on Pearl Street, and had a country-seat at Manhattanville, a village which had been laid out by him with his brothers-in-law, John Burling Lawrence and Thomas Buckley.

Philip Pieterse Schuyler (——1683) is supposed to have been born in Holland about 1628, but little is known of his early life. He came from Amsterdam to this country in 1650, settling in Beverwyck (Albany). He was a general merchant and trader and a dealer in land, and early became successful and influential, partly because of his friendship with the Indians. He was Commissary at Fort Orange in 1655 and a Magistrate there for many terms. He served also as Commissioner of Albany, 1678; a delegate to the Mohawk Indians, 1655; and Vice-Director or Deputy under Governors Stuyvesant and Nicolls. He had the first Commission of Captain in Albany in 1667, and in 1669 held similar rank at Schenectady, although he never lived there. In 1662 he, with others, laid out "New Village," at Esopus (Kingston). He owned houses in Albany, on Broadway and on State, Beaver, and North Pearl Streets, where he lived at different times. The family homestead was on "The Flatts," a bouwery bought from the Van Rensselaer family. He was married at Albany, on December 12, 1650, to Margarita, daughter of Brant Arentse van Slichtenhorst, of Nykerk, Resident Director of Rensselaerswyck. He made his will on May 1, 1683, and died in his town house on May 9th, being buried in the church vaults. His wife died in 1711, after having assumed entire charge of the estate and managed it for twenty-eight years.

Samuel Seabury, D. D. (1729-1796), Bishop of Connecticut and Rhode Island, was the first Episcopal Bishop in America. He graduated from Yale College in 1748. He was born in Groton, Conn., but resided in the Province of New York from 1743 until he became Bishop in 1784. He was Rector of Grace Church, Jamaica, Long Island, from 1757 to 1766, and rector of St. Peter's Church, Westchester, from 1766 to the Revolutionary War, during which he resided on Manhattan Island, serving as Chaplain of the King's American Regiment, under Commission of Sir Henry Clinton, dated February 14th, 1778, and also practicing as a physician, for which he had been educated in Edinburgh.

John Seaman (1610-1695), believed to have been born in England in 1610, appears in Long Island as early as 1643. The name was then generally written Symonds. In 1647 he was one of the proprietors of Hempstead, L. I. When the inhabitants of the English villages held an assembly in 1653 to formulate their protests against the Dutch government he was a delegate from Hempstead. He was nominated by the town and appointed by the Dutch in 1656 as a Magistrate. In 1665 he held the commission of Captain in the Queens County Militia. That same year his name appears as one of the jury in the "Witchcraft trial." He was made Schepen in 1673 and in 1674 held court with the Schout (Sheriff). The tax list for 1683 shows him assessed for two men, 266 acres, fourteen oxen, thirty-six cows, twelve hogs, seventy sheep, and twelve horses. He married, first, Elizabeth Strickland, who bore him five children, and, secondly, Maria More, who had nine. His will, dated August 25, 1694, was proved March 25, 1695.

Jacob Sharpe came to this country with Governor Hunter in 1710 and went to Saugerties, N. Y. His son, Jacob Hendrick Sharpe, lived in Brooklyn, and in April, 1775, was one of the delegates from Brooklyn to the meeting to appoint representatives from the towns of Kings County to the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, in May of the same year. In 1784, at the first Town Meeting in Brooklyn after the Revolution, he was elected Town Clerk.

Mary Sherman (1763-1834), the daughter of Rev. Josiah Sherman and Martha Minott, and the wife of Joseph Ives, resided in Albany, N. Y.

John Sidell (1730-1786) was a resident of Duke Street, New York City, and by occupation an importing tailor. In his will, dated November 7, 1781, he disposed of a considerable estate.

Christian Simmons (1776-1845) was probably a son of Christian Simmons, who resided in Dutchess County, New York, prior to 1785. Some persons maintain that the first above mentioned Christian Simmons was the son of Albertus Simmons (1728-1796) and his wife, Margaret Weaver (1743-1796).

William Simonson, or possibly Willem Simonse, emigrated from Amsterdam August 31, 1662, in The Fox. He is found in the Province of Staten Island as early as 1631, where there have been numerous descendants of his.

Richard Smith (——1692) first appears on Long Island in 1643. He was then in Southampton with a full Proprietor right and the title of Mr., at that time an indication of excellent social position. Nothing is known definitely of him before that. It has been said that he was the son of Richard Smith (or Smythe), of Myrshaw, Bradford Parish, Yorkshire, England. On October 7, 1648, he was chosen a Freeman, and on October 7, 1650, Constable. He seems to have been a turbulent character and was ordered by the General Court on September 17, 1656, to leave town in a week "for his unreverend carriage towards the Magistrates." He left Southampton some weeks later and went to Setauket, Long Island. It has been said that he appeared in Boston in 1656, was imprisoned there for disorderly conduct, but soon released and sent back to Long Island. He had evidently an ambition to be a great landholder and rule without outside interference or domination. He first purchased land from the Indian Sachem Nassekege on the east side of the Nissequogue River and later on the west side from Lion Gardiner, adjoining Huntington, and claimed by that town. His controversy with Huntington was finally ended by a patent from Governor Richard Nicolls and later a second patent from Governor Andros. The tradition is that Richard Smith gained his land by the bargain with the Indians that he was to have all he could ride around on a bull in a day. He trained the bull and managed to encircle all the land which later became Smithtown. He has always been known as "Bull" Smith and was the progenitor of the extensive "Bull" Smith Family of Long Island. His wife was Sarah Folger and his children included Elizabeth, who married Captain William Lawrence, Governor Philip Carteret, and, thirdly, Colonel Richard Townley, For a long time the services of "Bull" Smith were confused with those of Richard Smith and his son, Major Richard Smith, of Rhode Island. It seems clear now that "Bull" Smith was not the Richard who served in New Amsterdam as Major, one of the Eight Men, and on the Governor's Council.

Abraham Staats (——1694), also spelled as Staas, Staes and Staet, was a surgeon from Amsterdam. He entered into a contract with the Patroon Kiliaen Van Rensselaer on February 1, 1642, to sail to the colony with his wife and one servant and to practice as surgeon for the period of six years from the date of his arrival to the exclusion of all others. He sailed on the ship den Houttuyn from Texel in June, 1642, arriving at New Amsterdam on August 4, 1642. He had his servant with him, but apparently his wife came later. In the contract his age is given as twenty-four and his wife's as nineteen. She was Trijntje Jochims (Catrina Jochemse), daughter of Jochem Wesselse. He went directly to Rensselaerswyck and his salary of thirty florins a year as surgeon seems to have been paid up to March 20, 1648. Meanwhile he had established himself in business and become a very active and successful trader. In one year alone he sent 4,200 beaver pelts to New Amsterdam. He had a considerable bouwery or farm, and in 1658 he owned a yacht. In 1684 he owned the sloop Claverack, plying between Albany and New York. From February 5, 1643, to April 10, 1644, he was paid a salary as a member of the Council, of which he was President from 1644 to 1648. In 1669 he was Captain of the local militia and later became Major of Foot. In 1649 he bought property in the village "near the first creek."

Moses Taylor was a London merchant who settled in New York City about 1736. In 1750 his business was advertised as "at the corner house opposite the Fly market." He was admitted as a Freeman of New York City in 1738 and his name appears on the Poll List of 1761. His son, Moses, Jr., who was born in 1739, greatly increased the family fortune. During the British occupation of New York he removed to the interior of New Jersey, where his son, Jacob B., was born. Jacob B. Taylor returned to New York to enter business, becoming prominent socially and politically as well as financially. His son, Moses Taylor (1806-1882), became one of the wealthiest men of his day, being the President of the City Bank and practically the owner of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad. President Lincoln offered to make him the Secretary of the Treasury, but he preferred to continue in his private enterprises.

Dirck Wesselse Ten Broeck (1638-1717) was the son of Wessel Ten Broeck, who was supposed to have come to New Netherland with Peter Minuit, the first Director General, in 1626. It is not known where he married or where his children were born. The son Dirck was born on December 18, 1638, probably in New Amsterdam. He appeared in Albany as early as 1662, when he was associated with the trader, Peter Van Alen. Later he went into business for himself, trading on a large scale in beaver skins and other furs. Dirck Wesselse, who always wrote his name as ten Broeck, was apparently a man of good education, as he spoke and wrote frequently. He early mastered the Indian tongue. In 1663 he bought the former residence of the famous Anneke Jans, now at the corner of State and James Street, Albany, and that same year married at Albany, Christyna Van Buren (1644-1729). Later in life he secured possession of a large bouwerie at Clermont and spent his closing years there, dying at this residence on September 18, 1717. Dirck Wesselse ten Broeck became active politically and in military affairs. In 1676 he was Magistrate, Commissary in 1686, Alderman, Recorder from 1686-1696, from 1696-1698 the Mayor of Albany. He was a member of the First Provincial Assembly in 1691 and served also in the Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth. He was Commissioner of Indian Affairs for many years and a Political Agent to Canada four times. He held the rank of Captain under Fitz-John Winthrop in the Canadian Expedition of 1690, and was Major of Militia under Col. Peter Schuyler in 1700. He was a staunch supporter of the Church, long acting as Deacon.

Coenraet Ten Eyck came from Amsterdam, Holland, about 1650, settling in New Amsterdam. He was a tanner, shoe dealer and manufacturer, and very successful in business. He owned, as early as 1653, a house lot on the west side of the "Heere Graft" (Broad Street, between Beaver and Pearl) and had tan pits farther up on the same street. He also owned property on the south side of Pearl Street and the east side of Coentie's Slip, which bears his name. In 1674 his estate was estimated at $5,000, a highly respectable sum for the times. In 1675 Ten Eyck and three other shoemakers and tanners bought part of the former property of Cornelis van Tienhoven, bounded now by Maiden Lane, Ann Street, Broadway, and a line on the east between William and Gold Streets. These four men wanted to establish their tan pits in the low ground along Maiden Lane and use the rest of the tract, which was long known as "Shoemaker's Field," for pasturage. Ten Eyck was entered as a "small burgher" in 1657. He held the rank of Lance Corporal in the Burgher Guard in 1653 and was a Schepen in 1657 and 1673. He married twice; his first wife being Maria Bode (Boise), who was the mother of his seven children. Secondly, he married in 1682 Annetjie Daniels, twice a widow, last of Joseph Waldron. Coenraet's will was dated September 4, 1686, and proved April 5, 1687. His oldest son, Jacob, went to Albany, while Dirck, Tobias, and Coenraet, Jr., carried on their father's business in New York.

William Thorne is supposed to have landed at Boston in 1629. He went to Lynn, Massachusetts, where he was made a Freeman on May 2, 1638. That same year he had forty acres of land apportioned to him there. He appears as one of the seventeen patentees of Flushing, Long Island, on October 19, 1645. In 1646 he was granted a plantation lot in Gravesend, L. I. In 1657 he was one of the proprietors of Jamaica, L. I., which had been conveyed to white settlers in 1656. His wife's name was probably Sarah and his son, Joseph, had a sloop named the William and Sarah.

George Bliss Throop (1761-1794) was born at Lebanon, Connecticut, on April 12, 1761, a son of John and Mary (Bliss) Throop. He married on November 2, 1783, Abia Thompson, born in Dutchess County, N. Y., in September, 1762. He died in Albany, N. Y., on November 13, 1794, and his widow married George W. Hatch, of Johnstown, N. Y. Her death came on June 24, 1846. George Bliss Throop received a college education and became a school teacher and surgeon. He served in the Third New York Regiment during the Revolution. His son, Enos Thompson Throop, was the eighth Governor of the State of New York.

John Underhill (1597-1672) is recorded in Volume I, page 253, yet an additional note in regard to this sturdy warrior, who settled at Oyster Bay, Long Island, may be welcome. Born October 7, 1597, he landed in Boston Harbor May 18, 1630, from the ship Mary and John, named for his mother and father. Captain John Underhill was the son of Sir John Edward Underhill, a descendant of Edward Underhill, the "Hot Gospeller," who was a cousin of John Underhill, Bishop of Oxford, England. With Captain John Underhill from Holland came his first wife, Helena Kruger, "a Holland Lady," who, with her son, John, was baptized in the Old South Church at Boston, Massachusetts. Helena died at Southold, Long Island, in the year 1658. Benoni Underhill, born 1629, was the eldest son of Captain John Underhill and Helena Kruger. On July 26, 1630, one of the earliest Acts of the New Government was that the first Thursday of every month be general training day with Captain Underhill's Company at Boston. On September 28, 1630, the Court ordered that fifty pounds be raised for the training of the Militia, Captain Underhill's and Captain Patrick's Companies. In 1631 Captain John Underhill, with a son of Dudley as Lieutenant, who married a daughter of John Winthrop, had charge of the Militia of Boston. He was freeman of Boston May 18, 1631, and one of the first deputies to the General Court. We find him in the first General Court at New Haven, one of the "Eight Men" in the first Common Council in New Amsterdam and a representative from Oyster Bay with Matthias Harvey to the first General Court at Hempstead. Numerous and influential, his descendants have formed the Underhill Society of America, and his grave at Matinecock, Long Island, is marked by a noble monument. Captain John Underhill married a second wife (1658?) named Elizabeth Feake; she was the daughter of Lieutenant Robert Feake, of Watertown, Massachusetts. He came to America in 1630 and served as Lieutenant with Captain John Underhill's Company. Lieutenant Robert Feake, with Captain Daniel Patrick, founded Greenwich, Connecticut, in 1640, and they were acknowledged in 1642 by the Dutch Government as Patroons and Lords of the Manor. The wife of Lieutenant Robert Feake, also named Elizabeth, was the widow of Henry, a son of Governor John Winthrop, being a daughter of Thomas Fones and Anna, a daughter of Adam Winthrop, who was the father of Governor John Winthrop, of Massachusetts. By this second marriage Captain John Underhill had a son, Nathaniel, born February 22, 1663.

Daniel Janse Van Antwerpen (1635——), from Antwerp, was in Beverwyck (Albany) by 1661, serving Adriaan Appel, a trader. About 1665 he appears in Schenectady, settling, prior to 1670, eight miles beyond the village, on what was known as the Third Flat. He was probably a trader with the Indians and is believed to have built a stone house for protection in the center of his bouwerie on the Mohawk River, which was standing as late as 1883. In 1706 Daniel Janse sold half of his farm. He also had a lot in the village of Schenectady, on the east corner of Union and Church Streets, which he occupied prior to 1671 and released to the Nether Dutch Church in 1715. In 1656 he was Deputy Schout Fiscal at Fort Orange, and in 1662 at Altoona, on the Delaware River. At Schenectady he was in 1676 a member of the Court of Justice and in 1701 a supervisor of the township. He married Maria, daughter of Symon Symonse Groot, and had five sons and three daughters, all having posterity.

Theunis Eliazen Van Benschoten seems to have been the first of his family in this country. Nothing is known of his early history and the date of his arrival is uncertain. He signed his name with the mark of a trident and it has been thought he may have been a sailor. Bunschoten, a small town near the Zuyder Zee, is believed to have been his original home. He first appears at Kingston on April 3, 1671, where he was a witness to a deed. In 1674 he applied for permission for a lot to build on "outside the gate." That his wife's name was Gerritje Gerrits is first learned when they had a son baptized in 1676. In 1678 he was a purchaser of land on the Esopus Flats (Kingston). He seems to have prospered and was able to employ a girl as servant. We know that the agreement read that when her contract expired in two years' time Theunis Eliasen was to "furnish a presentable Sunday gown, four chimeses, two blue aprons, two white aprons, and one silver head-ornament." In 1682, at Kingston, he was appointed one of three "reviewers of chimneys and all places where fires are lit." From 1633 to 1688 he served in the local troop of cavalry. During 1688 and 1689 he was adding more land by several purchases. He was one of the original Trustees of the Corporation of Kingston. In 1705 he was a Magistrate and served as deacon and elder in the Dutch Church for many years. He died sometime between February 5, 1725/6, and February 16, 1727/8. Nothing is known of his wife after 1700. His descendant, Elias van Benschoten (1717——), who married Katrina Keyser, held the rank of Major in the Revolutionary War.

Cornelis Van Buren (——1648), the progenitor, came from Holland in 1631 on the ship Endracht. He was from the Province of Gelderland, from the small place called Burmalsen, near the town of Buren, a few miles from the Rhine. Three years later he returned to Holland, married there, and came back to this country in 1636. He settled in the Colony of Rensselaerwyck. His career was rather uneventful. It is recorded that he purchased a piece of property in Manhattan, located between the present Christopher and Fourteenth Streets, doubtless having a North River frontage. He and his wife, Catalyntje, both died and were buried the same day at their farm at Papsknee, some time in 1648.

Dirck Janszen Van der Clyff appears to have been an early immigrant from the village of Alphen, in Brabant. He married at the Reformed Dutch Church in New York, on April 3, 1667, Geesje Hendricks, a daughter of Hendrick Willemsen, a baker of the city. About this time Dirck Janszen seems to have lived on the south side of the present Wall Street, but he bought in 1681, from Hendrick Rycken, the blacksmith, the so-called "Wallenstein" bouwery, paying 5,000 guilders for it. This farm, originally owned by Cornelis van Tienhoven, lay between the "Shoemakers' Pasture" and the road along the East River (at present Pearl Street) and south of the present Beekman Street, nearly to Maiden Lane. Van der Clyff lived there until his death about 1694. His widow caused the bouwery to be divided into lots for sale. She named one new street "Orange" and the other "Nassau." Orange Street became generally known as "Vanderclyff's," and is now Cliff. Nassau Street became merged into the present Fulton. Geesje lived as late as 1711, and is believed to have kept a tavern. Her husband had at one time established a place of resort called "The Orchard." There was a large family and the six daughters chiefly married Englishmen. One, Cornelia, became the wife of Benjamin Norwood in 1693.

Jans Cornelise Van Der Hoeven is supposed to have been a son of an early immigrant to Kinderhook. With his wife, Dorothe Jans, he arrived at Fort Orange some time prior to 1676, when he was a property holder there. His brother, Cornelis Cornelse, seems to have been at the same place.

Wynant Gerritse Van Der Poel was probably born in Holland about 1630. He was in Albany as early as 1657 and as late as 1694. In 1674 he purchased a half interest in a saw mill on the east bank of the Hudson, opposite Albany, on what is now known as "Wynant's Kill." He died between 1695 and 1702. Two wills were drawn, one in 1694 and the other in 1695. The later one, in which he described himself as "late of Albany, now of New York," was dated February 29, 1695, and proved April 17, 1702. By it he left his son, Melgert (Melchert), only six shillings and bequeathed most of his property to one of his sons-in-law, Willem G. van der Bergh. Wynant Gerritse married Tryntje Melgerse. He was a Magistrate at Albany in 1671.

Abraham Pietersen Van Deursen (1607——) was born in Haarlem, Holland, in 1607, and was married there on December 9, 1629, to Tryntje Melchiors, a native of Groningen. No children seem to have been born to them before they left their native country for New Netherland sometime between 1630 and 1636. In the latter year Abraham Pietersen appears in Quetenesse, an island off the coast of Narragansett, where he was representing the Dutch West India Company. In 1658 he was in New Amsterdam, securing permission to erect a water mill on the "Fresh Water," near the present James and Cherry Streets. He had been for some years the official miller of the Company and apparently this new enterprise was a private matter. He had been ordered by the Court in 1646 to grind the Company's grain before that of private persons, and two years later had been reappointed official miller. His new mill of 1658 was sold in 1661. He was at one time engaged in the manufacture of groats, in 1648 was one of the twelve tavern keepers of New Amsterdam, and dealt in real estate as early as 1649. In 1639 he had rented Bouwerie No. 6 from Director General Kieft, and in 1640 leased No. 5. He had the Small Burgher right in 1657, was one of the Twelve Men in 1641, and of the Eight Men in 1642. The date of his death is uncertain, his name last appearing on record in 1667. His wife was alive as late as 1678. The name Deursen is of a place in Brabant.

Hendrick Van Dyck came to New Netherland in 1639 or 1640, in the service of the West India Company as ensign commandant of their troop. In 1642, when Kieft's mismanagement made the Indians troublesome, Van Dyck was put in command of about eighty men to penetrate their country and destroy their villages. Before any

Indian settlement was reached a storm broke and darkness caused the guide to miss his way, making Van Dyck lose his temper and march his men home. However, the news of the expedition so alarmed the Indians that they shortly made peace. Following Kieft's butchery of the Indians in 1643 the tribes banded together and raided all outlying settlements. Van Dyck, while standing guard not far from the fort, was wounded in the arm. In 1644 Captain John Underhill, then in the Dutch service, and Ensign Van Dyck commanded a force of one hundred and thirty men which so successfully attacked the Indians that they sued for peace. Van Dyck shortly afterwards returned to Holland, where he secured, on June 28th, 1645, an appointment as Schout Fiscal (State's Attorney) at New Amsterdam. He made the trip across in 1646 with the new Director General, Stuyvesant, who showed his animosity from the start. Van Dyck was treated rudely, kept out of the Council, and assigned disagreeable duties. This attitude was maintained upon arrival at New Amsterdam. Although Van Dyck's official position entitled him to a seat with the Council, Stuyvesant excluded him by force for twenty-nine months, saying the Schout could not keep a secret and charging him with rascality and drunkenness. Adrian van der Donck, in his letter to the West India Company of 1649, said Van Dyck's "head was a trouble to him and his screw is loose, especially when surrounded by a little sap in the wood." Van Dyck was very patient and had his behavior supported somewhat by the West India Company, which rebuked Stuyvesant, alluding to the Schout's "respectable friends." In 1650, when Van Dyck formally protested against the Director, he was dismissed from office by Stuyvesant, being succeeded as Schout Fiscal by the Secretary, Van Tienhoven. Under date of September 18, 1652, Van Dyck wrote to the States General of Holland his "Defence," an exceedingly able and eloquent paper, showing a keen mind and broad education. As a result Van Tienhoven was dismissed, and although Van Dyck was not restored, he lived honorably afterwards. Many historians make Van Dyck the cause of the disastrous Indian war of 1655, charging that he killed an Indian woman for stealing from his orchard. The truth seems to be that he was innocently standing at his garden gate on Heere Straat (Broadway), near Trinity Church, when he was wounded by an arrow. This caused an alarm and the citizens fell upon the Indians within the city, who fled, only to raid the outlying farms and settlements. Stuyvesant, De La Montagne, and Van Tienhoven, all hostile to Van Dyck, in official statements hold to this story. The Directors of the West India Company knew of the rumor of the slain Indian squaw, but did not punish Van Dyck, only Van Tienhoven. Van Dyck lived quietly for more than thirty years afterwards. His will is dated in 1685 and proved in 1688. His wife, Deivertje, had died and he married, in 1675, the widow of Jacob Van Couwenhoven. One daughter married Major Nicholas de Meyer.

Baltus Barents Van Kleeck was Captain of a militia regiment composed of men from both Dutchess and Ulster Counties, in 1700. In 1702 he built of stone the first house in Poughkeepsie. When the laying out of the Post Road was authorized by the Colonial Assembly in 1703 from "Kings Bridge to a point over against Albany," he was appointed one of the Commissioners for the Dutchess County portion of the highway. In 1712 he was "one of Her Majesties Justices of Peace" (Queen Anne). He represented Dutchess County in the Sixteenth Colonial Assembly, which sat from May 3d to July 21st, 1715, and was elected to the Seventeenth Colonial Assembly in 1716, serving until his death in 1717.

Pieter Casparsen Van Norden came to New Amsterdam from Naerden, Holland, there is reason to believe, in 1623. He was a well-known burgher in the forties; and until his death frequently mentioned as taxpayer, contributor to public causes, witness and litigant, and for several years holding office as excise commissioner. He owned the house on the southwest corner of Broad and Marketfield Streets, which was his home. He married in New York City a Dutchwoman of the same surname, Aechtie Jans van Norden. He died about 1663 and she about 1690.

Jacob Janse Van Nostrand, or Van Noorstrant, from Nordstrand, an island off the coast of Schleswig, opposite Husum, from the vicinity of which a number of early settlers came, may have been a Frisian, Dane, or German, rather than a Hollander. It is believed he reached New Amsterdam in 1638. He seems to have been early in Albany, where he had a corner house lot and also a garden, lying behind Fort Orange. He was a brewer and in 1654 conveyed to Rutger Jacobse these two pieces of property and their appurtenances, except for a horse mill and brewer's tools. That same year Jacob Janse van Noorstrant was loaned 300 guilders by the church, which he partly paid back in 1665. Other land granted to him by the Dutch on April 23, 1652, and confirmed by Governor Andros, was sold on January 13, 1679/80. He also had a farm on Cahoos Island in 1677, which he sold in 1680. In 1700 he gave a deed to the Dutch Reformed Church of Albany for a lot in the great pasture of the church, which he had secured by patent from Governor Stuyvesant in 1653. In 1670 his wife, Agniette, took a dismissal from the Albany Church to that of New York. His son, Jan Jacobsen, remained in Albany, but Aren (Aaron) seems to have been a purchaser of two lots in Flatbush on March 7, 1695/6.

Pieter Van Quackenbosch (1639——), the emigrant, who reached America in 1660, is supposedly identical with the Pieter van Quackenbosch who was in attendance at Leyden University at the age of twelve and later studied theology at Groningen. He was born in 1639, probably in Leyden, where he lived with his father. He is said to have married, while still a student, and removed to the suburban village of Oestgeest, whence he left for New Netherland when twenty-one years old. There is no record of him at New Amsterdam, and he seems to have gone directly to Beverwyck (Albany). There he leased a brickyard, which afterwards, in 1668, he purchased. Brick-making was an ancient and honorable Dutch occupation. Pieter's wife was named Martje; their marriage took place about 1658 and there were nine children. The father died sometime after 1696. His descendants generally call themselves Quackenbos or Quackenbush.

Kiliaen Van Rensselaer (——1646) belonged by birth to the landed gentry of Holland, having an ancestral estate near Nykerk, in the present Province of Guelderland. He was educated as a merchant, and in 1629, when about fifty years old, was well-known as a dealer in pearls and jewels at Amsterdam. He was greatly interested in the development of New Netherland and was added to the directorate of the West India Company. In 1629 and 1630 he secured great tracts of land on the Hudson River, above and below Fort Orange, buying of the Indians through his two agents. Director General Minuit ratified these purchases by deed of 1630. Van Rensselaer bore, with three others, the title of Patroon and he worked on a joint account for development of their lands with Patroons Godyn and Blommaert, none of these three great Dutch landowners ever coming personally to America. Van Rensselaer, who named his lands "Rensselaerswyck," after his home estate, continued to acquire land on both sides of the river, the Manor eventually covering more than 700,000 acres, or 1,150 square miles. The first settlers arrived in 1630, followed by a second band in 1631. In all, the Patroon sent out 210 settlers during the sixteen years he held the manor, the only patroonship lasting more than a brief period. Van Rensselaer was determined to make a strong agricultural colony and labored greatly over his estate, although abroad, being familiar with the minutest affairs of Rensselaerswyck. He suffered frequent discouragements, both in Holland and New Netherland, and kept his great territory together only by unusual ability. On his death, in 1646, the manor passed to his son, Johan, known as the Second Patroon.

Claes Martenszen Van Rosenvelt seems to have first appeared in New Netherland in 1638, although he may have been there much before that. By some it is considered probable that he, who was generally referred to as Klein Klaasje (Little Claes) or Cleyn Claesjen, which sometimes was modified into Coleyn Claesie, was the Kleintjen who, during an exploring expedition went through a brief captivity among the South River Indians about 1616. In official records the first Rosenvelt is usually put down as Claes Martenszen and twice only with the addition of Van Rosenvelt. Only one of his four children took their father's name, Van Rosenvelt, and this one, Nicholas, became the ancestor of the American Roosevelt family. The wife of Claes Martenszen was known both as Jannetje Samuels and Jannetie Thomas. Her father's name was probably Thomas Samuels and she was called by both her own patronymic (Thomas) and his (Samuels). Claes Martens became a farmer, with his property situated back of Stuyvesant's Bouwery, at present somewhere between Broadway and the East River, in the neighborhood of Tenth Street. Claes probably died about 1658 and his wife in 1660. The son Nicholas was looked after by a foster mother, Metje Grevenraet. He married, when twenty-four, Hilletje Jans Kunst, of Albany, and shortly afterwards moved to Kingston. At some time after 1689 he returned to New York and carried on the business of a miller and bolter. Possibly his mill was at the "Fresh Water," hence the present Roosevelt Street.

Cornelis Van Santvoord (1686-1752) was baptized in Leyden on August 2, 1686. He graduated from the University of Leyden where he was educated for the ministry. He came to America in 1718, going to Staten Island, where he was the fifth dominie of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church. He was a scholar of unusual attainments and preached in the English, French and Dutch tongues. In 1742 he was called from Staten Island to the church of similar denomination at Schenectady, where he remained actively in charge until his death on January 6, 1752. He married while at Staten Island, Anna, daughter of Johannes Staats, and his children were born there. His wife died shortly after the removal to Schenectady and he married secondly in 1745, Elizabeth Toll (1721-1746). His will, made on March 24, 1752, shows that his wife Elizabeth had died without issue.

Goosen Gerritse Van Schaick came from Westerbroeck, Holland, in the service of Kiliaen van Rensselaer, arriving in 1637, probably on the ship Rensselaerswyck. He was under contract for six years. In 1646 he was charged with a payment made in Holland in 1645. In October, 1648, after repeated solicitation by the director to become a member of the Court, he pleaded to be excused because he did not consider himself fit for the office, was not the owner of a house and lot and therefore not required to serve, and because he had not settled all his accounts with the Patroon. His objections were overruled and on November 19, 1648, he took the oath, after having been allowed a trip to the Manhattans. He was released from serving on January 5, 1651. From 1648 to 1652 he was paying rent for a house and for a license to trade, and jointly with Rutger Jacobsz van Schoonderwoert from May, 1649, to May, 1650, for the lease of a brewery. In 1650 he was granted permission to be a tapster. Some years later he became a tanner. He moved to Albany. His fortunes gradually improved and in 1664 he and Philip Pieterse Schuyler secured permission to purchase the land, the "Halve Maen" (Half Moon), in Saratoga County, about fifteen miles north of Albany, from the Indians to prevent "those of Connecticut" securing it. Also in 1664 van Schaick bought land on the north corner of Columbia Street and Broadway. He and Pieter Lassingh purchased a brewery in 1675. He married twice; his first wife, Geertie Brantse Peelen van Nieuwkerk, dying about 1656, and Annetje Lievens marrying him in 1657. When he married the second time Goosen Gerritse made a contract in which he reserved from his estate 6,000 guilders for his four eldest children by his first wife, that being her separate estate. In 1668 he and his second wife made a joint will, he being about to depart for Holland, in which ten children are mentioned. He was commissioned Lieutenant of Militia in 1670 and Captain in 1676, and was a Magistrate at Fort Orange, 1664. He died about 1676.

Teunis Jacobse Van Schoenderwoert is supposed to have been a son of Jacob of Schoonderwoert, of Schoonrewoerd, in the province of South Holland, near the country estate of the Patroon Van Rensselaer. Jacob, the father, does not seem to have come to this country but two of his sons were here. Teunis sailed from the Texel in Holland in 1640 on the ship den Waterhondt. He was engaged as a farm hand at Rensselaerswyck for the period of six years. He was charged rent for a house lot from 1650 to 1652. He was married in New Amsterdam on April 19, 1650, to Sara Denyse, said to be from England. Their descendants are known as Van Woert. The brother of Teunis Jacobse was known as Rutger Jacobse, and probably came on the ship Rensselaerswyck, leaving the Texel in 1636 and arriving at New Amsterdam in 1637. He served the Patroon as a farm hand for six years from April 8, 1637, on the farm of Cornelis Teunisz from Breuckelen (Brooklyn). Starting April 7, 1647, he was engaged as a foreman at 220 florins a year, a suit of clothes, two shirts, and two pairs of shoes. From 1645 to 1647 he was lessee of a farm. From 1648 to 1654 he was charged with the annual rent of one saw-mill and jointly with Barent Pietersz for a saw-mill and grist-mill. He owned a yacht about 1648 and from about 1649 had a license to trade in furs. From October 18, 1650, he and Goossen Jacobse were authorized to brew beer, paying a duty for every barrel and brewing free the beer for the households of van Slichtenhorst and de Hooges. From 1649 to 1651 he served as a member of the council. He married at New Amsterdam on June 3, 1646, Trijntje Jans from Breestede (Bredstedt) in Schleswig and died before December 9, 1665. His descendants are known by the name of Rutgers and Rutsen.

Steven Koerts Van Voorhees (1600-1684) was a well to do farmer from Hees, a district situated near Ruinen in the province of Drenth. He had seven children and probably removed to this country in their interest, sailing with them on the ship De Bonte Coe (The Spotted Cow) in April, 1660. Almost immediately upon his arrival, on November 29, 1660, he purchased of Cornelis Dirksen Hoogland for 3,000 guilders a farm of sixty-two acres in Flatlands, together with a brewery-house and the brewery apparatus. Some twenty-five years later his property had grown to one hundred and ten acres. He was too old for civil honors which instead came to his oldest son Coert Stevensen, who had married about 1663 a daughter of Gerrit Wolfertsen Van Kouwenhoven. Coert was appointed a Schepen at Amersfoort in 1664 and 1673 and later represented Amersfoort in the General Assembly. His mother had died and his father married again in 1677 Willempie Roelofse Seubering. She died in 1684 when Steven had ten children. Most of their descendants took the name Van Voorhees but in various forms of spelling. William Roe Van Voorhis, who was the eldest son of John Van Voorhis and lived all his life at Fishkill, held the commission of Major in the 149th Regiment of Infantry during the War in 1812.

Jacobus Gerritsen Van Vorst was the son of Gerrit Janszen Van Vorst, who was killed by an Indian in 1642. Jacobus, who was baptized in New Amsterdam July 3, 1642, was in New Amsterdam in 1662, at New Utrecht on Long Island in 1668, in Beverwyck (Albany) from 1671 to 1700, and in Schenectady from 1700 until his death, supposed to have occurred about 1720. In 1687 he was licensed by Major Schuyler of Albany as one of the two city porters and as a cartman. His wife's name and the date of his marriage is unknown. His son Jellis, a shoemaker, married in 1699 Elizabeth, daughter of Jan B. Van Eps and widow of Teunis Vielè. He moved to Schenectady shortly after that time.

Symon Volckertse Veeder (1624——), known also as De Bakker, belonged to the ship Prince Willem, plying between Amsterdam and New Amsterdam, when about 1652 he bought a house and lot in New Amsterdam and settled there. He sold his property in 1654 for thirty beavers and later removed to Beverwyck (Albany) and thence to Schenectady. In 1665 he owned a house lot in Beverwyck, and the year following purchased another house and lot by the river. In Schenectady he owned the bouwerie on the Great Flat, numbered 9, and a village lot on the north corner of State and Ferry Streets. He also had pasture land between Front Street and the River, in the Kalver-Wey. In 1682 he bought another lot, with house and barn, on the Normanskil and in 1683 still another. His will, made January 8, 1696/7, mentions his wife, Engeltie, and eight children, all with families. He died about 1700. His son, Gerrit Symonse, married in 1690 Tryntje Otten, who brought him some property; he died in 1755.

Willem Isaacsen (Van) Vredenburgh, from The Hague, arrived at New Amsterdam in May, 1658, on the ship Gilded Beaver. He was a soldier in the service of the Dutch West India Company until at least 1661. His name appears among the petitioners for the remission of the passage money of discharged soldiers. On October 19, 1664, he married, in the Dutch Church of New Amsterdam, where she had been baptized on January 29, 1645, Apollonia Barents, daughter of Barent Jacobszen (Cool) and Marritie Leenderts. In 1673 they were living under the walls of Fort William Hendrick and near the new fortifications of New Orange. When it was necessary to remove their house because of this, the surveyor was ordered to set off Lot Number 1, on the west side of Broadway, formerly the garden of the West India Company, for Vredenburgh. He sold this property in 1678 to David Ackerman, and about 1677 moved to Esopus (Kingston), where were baptized three of his children, numbering at least ten in all. No will of his is known and the date of his death is uncertain.

Jacob Walich (——1657) spelled also Walingsen and in various other ways, was the progenitor in this country of the Van Winkle family. He, with his brother, Symon, were members of an ancient family of the Village of Winkel in North Holland, about fifteen miles northwest of Hoorn, and first sailed for this country about 1624. He was the occupant of Bouwerie No. 5, one of the first six farms started by the Dutch West India Company, from 1624 to 1636. For the purpose of further stocking his bouwerie he went back to Holland, probably with his brother, on the return trip of the ship De Soutbergh in 1633, leaving his farm in charge of Claes Cornelissen Switz. Registered as "of New Netherland" they joined the Dutch church in Hoorn in 1633. The following year the ship De Coninck David carried them back to New Amsterdam, the arrival being made in June, 1635. In about a year Jacob's lease of Bouwerie No. 5 terminated and he entered into a contract with Patroon Kiliaen van Rensselaer on August 15, 1636, and settled on a farm in Rensselaerswyck. His brother is believed to have been with him but was murdered by an Indian at Paulis Hook in Pavonia in 1649. On October 1, 1650, Jacob returned to Manhattan, although offered the choice of several farms to remain, saying he could not support his family satisfactorily there. It is known that prior to 1635 he had led an unsuccessful movement to establish a settlement on the Connecticut River. He is also believed to have been the tenant of the Manhattan Bouwerie No. 14, called the "Walenstyne" (House of Waling) between 1636 and 1642. On October 23, 1654, he secured a grant of land at Pavonia, now Jersey City, New Jersey. The following year the Indians destroyed the whole settlement but he early returned and his family has been continuously represented there for eleven generations. In August, 1641, Jacob Walingsen was appointed a member of The Twelve Men. He died early in 1657, leaving a widow, Trintje Jacobs, and six minor children. He had probably married about 1647. His widow later became the wife of Jacob Stoffelsen.

Johannes Wandell is supposed to have been born in Amsterdam, Holland, about 1700, early coming to America to settle in Fishkill, New York. He seems to have married there his wife, who was named Thurston. Among his five children was a son, Jacob, born in Fishkill on May 30, 1747, later of Tappan, New York, and of Haverstraw, where he died. He had married on February 8, 1770, Catherine, daughter of Stephen Stilwell, of Hempstead.

Andrew Warde (——1659) was born about 1597, in Gorleston, County Suffolk, England, and came to this country about 1630. He was first at Watertown, Mass., then in turn at Wethersfield, Stamford, and Fairfield, Connecticut. He held important civil offices, being frequently Deputy and Assistant, and serving as one of the seven Commissioners appointed in 1635 by the General Court of Massachusetts to form a government in Connecticut. He married Hester Sherman, born April 1, 1606, whose parents lived in Dedham, Essex County, England. Andrew Warde died in 1659 and his wife in 1666. Their descendant, Edmund Ward (1728-1807), who married Phoebe Brooks, lived in East Chester, Westchester County, N. Y.

Richard Webb was an emigrant from Dorsetshire, England, in 1626, when he appears in Cambridge, Massachusetts. The belief is that Richard emigrated with his son, Richard, then three years old, and his kinsman, possibly a brother, Christopher Webb. Richard resided in Cambridge, Boston, and Braintree, Massachusetts, and Hartford, and other places in Connecticut, finally settling in Norwalk, Connecticut. There he was living in 1650 with his wife, Elizabeth Gregory. He is supposed to have died in Norwalk in 1656 and his wife there in 1680. His son, Richard, born about 1623, died in 1676. Richard, Jr., married Margery ——— and had six children. Later generations moved to New York State.

Daniel Whitney (——1848) born at East Woods, now Woodbury, Long Island, was a farmer. He married September 26, 1809, Amelia Valentine, daughter of Jonathan S. and Deborah Valentine of West Hills, Huntington, L. I. She died September 23, 1810, and was buried at West Hills. His second wife was Nancy Valentine, sister of his first wife. He was a Lieutenant of Militia in the War of 1812 and served for three months at Sag Harbor, L. I. After the war for a short time he commanded a sloop on the Hudson River and Long Island Sound, and in May, 1819, bought and occupied his father's homestead at East Woods, where he died August 7, 1848, and where his wife had died before him on September 13, 1845. Both are buried in Fountain Hill Cemetery, Long Island.

Ichabod Williams, born in 1706, was the descendant of a Welsh family from near Chester, England. He was a cabinet maker and lived in Pearl Street, New York City. His father owned a property known as Williams' Farm, near Elizabethport, in New Jersey, where the family first settled in America.

John Williams (1752-1806) was born in Barnstable, Devonshire, England, in 1752. He was a university graduate, with a license to practice medicine and surgery, who served in a London hospital and on a British war vessel before coming to America, where he first appeared in 1773. He settled at New Perth, now Salem, in the former Charlotte, now Washington, County. Dr. Williams arrived at the time of a smallpox epidemic and not long before the Revolution, when surgeons were greatly needed, and these unusual opportunities made his success very prompt and very full. Within a year or two he was buying real estate, building saw and grist mills, and developing farms. He erected a handsome home in Salem, even now standing. Although an English officer on half pay, when the war came he immediately associated himself with the patriotic cause. Only twenty-three years old, he was unanimously elected as one of the two delegates from Charlotte County to the first Provincial Congress, which met in New York City on May 20, 1775, and served in the succeeding sessions. He was appointed to important committees and considerably increased his reputation. Early in the war he was commissioned Colonel of the First Charlotte County Regiment and a surgeon in the Army. His regiment was largely raised and equipped from his own private means. As its commander, he fought at the battles of Fort Ann, Bennington, Stillwater, and Schuylersville, and relieved General St. Clair at Fort Ticonderoga. When the Provincial Congress was succeeded by the New York Legislature in 1781, he was elected a delegate, serving into 1782. From 1783 to 1795 he was in the New York Senate, serving three terms of four years each.

He was an able speaker, and young as he was, spoke against such men as Alexander Hamilton on the floor of the New York Constitutional Convention at Poughkeepsie in June, 1788. In 1793 he was elected to the United States House of Representatives, serving also in the succeeding, the Fifth, Congress. He was the first to secure legislative action providing for canal construction.

After the war he became a stockholder and director of the Northern Inland Lock Navigation Company, which sought to connect the Hudson with Lake Champlain. He was appointed to the first Board of Regents of the State University, organized the Washington Academy in 1791, was Justice of the Peace and Judge of the Washington County Court. He was perhaps the leading agent in the development of the northeastern section of the State. He was interested in farms, lumber, and grain, and shipped largely to England and Canada. His death came on July 22, 1806.

Henry Willis (1628-1714) was born in Westbury, Wiltshire, England, on September 14, 1628. He married Mary Peace in 1654, and six children were born in England. The family lived at the town of Devizes, Wiltshire, until 1667, when they removed to London, where the younger children were born. Henry Willis' strong sympathy with the Quakers and his consequent desire to enjoy fuller liberty were in part responsible for his emigration to America about 1675. He seems to have stopped first at Philadelphia and from thence found a temporary home at Oyster Bay, Long Island. He afterwards bought in 1683 fifty acres of land from Captain John Seaman, at Wood Edge, near Hempstead, L. I. He named the place Westbury, after his old home in England. He was a Quaker and was fined in 1678 for allowing his daughter to be married in his house by the ceremony of the Friends. His wife, born on July 12, 1632, died on April 23, 1714. She had at least seven children. Henry Willis died on July 11, 1714.

Johannes Wisner was a subaltern officer in the army commanded by the Prince of Orange in the wars against the French. He came to America about 1713, settling first on Long Island and a year or two later in Orange County, N. Y. His wife's name is supposed to have been Elizabeth Dumbaugh. A grandson, Henry Wisner, was born in Orange County, 1720, and married in 1740 Sarah Norton, of Queens County. Henry Wisner was a member of the Second, Third, and Fourth New York Assemblies, 1759-1769; the Continental Congress, 1774-1776; New York Provincial Convention, 1775; New York Provincial Congress, 1775-1777; and the New York Senate, 1777-1782. He was a manufacturer of gunpowder in Ulster County in 1775. He died about September 4, 1790. Henry Wisner had a son, Gabriel, an Ensign in the Fourth Regiment of Orange County, New York, Militia, who was killed in action at Minnisink, on July 22, 1779. Another grandson of Johannes was John Wisner (1722-1778), a Captain in the Orange County Militia in 1755-1757, fighting the Indians on the Delaware, and a Captain of Minute Men in 1776. He had a son, Henry Wisner (1742-1812), who rose to be a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Orange County Militia during the Revolution.

John Wood (——1692) came from Attercliffe, Sheffield, Yorkshire, England, in 1678 on the Shield, with William Penn's Colonists. He settled at what is now Morrisville, Pennsylvania. He was a member of the Provincial Assembly, 1682-1683.

Pieter Claesen Wyckoff came to this country in 1636, when he was a child of nine, presumably with his father, Claes Cornelissen. He seems to have been on a farm near Albany until about 1649, when he married Gretie, daughter of Cornelis Hendricksz van Nes. It is presumed they shortly moved to New Amsterdam, where their first child was baptized on November 27th, 1650. It is known that the father of Gretie van Nes, a Councilor at Rensselaerswyck, had trouble with Director Brant Arentse van Slichtenhorst, in 1648, and early in 1649 made every preparation for leaving the Colony, although he finally stayed, and the impetus of this start may have sent his son-in-law and daughter off. In 1653 Pieter Claesen is found at Amersfoort (Flatlands), on a farm of his own, and in 1655, when still a very young man, he was the manager of the Amersfoort bouwery of Peter Stuyvesant. He became prominent and wealthy. For many terms he was a Magistrate and served as a delegate to the convention held at Midwout (Flatbush) to consider a petition to Holland on the distressed state of the country. His name appears as a Patentee in the charters of 1667 and 1686. Shortly after the English occupation of 1664 he adopted the surname, Wyckoff, derived from the two Dutch words, meaning, broadly, "refuge" and "city." He lived until about 1700. He had in all ten children, all but the first two being baptized at Flatlands at the church of which he was a charter member, and under the pulpit of which he was first buried. His children married well, allying themselves with such families as Kouwenhoven, van Arsdale, Romeyn, Schenck, and Montfort.

Clarence Storm

In the prime and strength of manhood
Swiftly was the message sent,
Calling him on that last journey
To the Kingdom of Content.

By the years he passed among us,
By his ever helpful life,
By his daily high endeavor
To avert all needless strife;

By such traits of manly kindness,
Surely did he prove his right
To be rated with the sunshine
That has made our lives more bright.

ARTICLE I.

OF THE NAME OF THE SOCIETY.

SECTION 1. The name of this Society shall be "The Saint Nicholas Society of the City of New York," and its objects shall be to afford pecuniary relief to indigent or reduced members of this Society and their widows and children; to collect and preserve information respecting the history, settlement, manners, etc., of the City of New York, and to promote social intercourse among its native citizens.

ARTICLE II.

OF MEMBERS.

SECTION 1. Any person of full age, in respectable standing in society, of good moral character, who was a native or resident of the City or State of New York prior to the year one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five, or who is a descendant of any such native or resident, or who is a descendant of a member of this Society, shall be eligible as a member. But whenever, and as long as there shall be six hundred and fifty members of the Society, no one shall be elected to membership unless he be the descendant in the oldest male line of a member or former member, and in all elections to membership the ballot shall be first taken on the candidates who may be the descendants of members.

SECTION 2. Candidates for admission must be proposed by one member and seconded by another who shall state, in writing, the name, place of residence, profession or occupation of the candidate and his qualifications for membership; also that they know him personally, and that he is a proper person to become a member of the Society.

The name of every candidate, with those of his proposer and seconder, shall be sent to the Secretary twenty days before he can be balloted for.

Members shall be elected by the Board of Officers.

A candidate must receive three-fourths of the votes of the officers present, and two black-balls shall exclude.

A rejected candidate shall not be again proposed within six months after such rejection.

SECTION 3. Each member shall, immediately on his election, sign the Constitution and pay to the Treasurer his initiation fee and the annual dues for the current year, and shall not take his seat as a member until he shall have complied with the requisitions of this section; but such election shall be void if the member so elected shall fail to qualify as required by this section, within sixty days after notice of his election is mailed, addressed to him at the address specified in the Proposal Book of the Society.

SECTION 4. The initiation fee shall be twenty dollars, and each member shall annually pay the sum of five dollars (in advance for the ensuing year) on the anniversary meeting in each year.

SECTION 5. The payment at one time of one hundred dollars or more shall constitute a life member; and the member so paying shall, if not in arrears, be exempt from the payment of the initiation fee or annual dues or both.

SECTION 6. If any member neglect or refuse to pay his annual dues for the space of one year after the same shall become due, he shall be considered to have resigned his membership, and his name shall be stricken from the roll of the Society, unless some good reason for such neglect or refusal be presented to the Board of Officers, in which case the said Board may by resolution continue him as a member.

SECTION 7. Any member wishing to resign shall tender his resignation in writing, which may be accepted, provided the amount of dues (if any) for which said member may be in arrears shall be then paid up.

SECTION 8. Whenever a member shall, in the opinion of a majority of the whole Board of Officers, be guilty of conduct unbecoming a member of the Society, it shall be the duty of the Board to request him to present his resignation within a time specified by the Board, and upon his failure to present such resignation within such time, such member may be expelled by vote of not less than two-thirds of all the members of the Board of Officers, at least one month's previous notice, in writing, of the time and place of a hearing having been given to the member, by mailing or delivering to him a copy of the charges.

ARTICLE III.

OF THE OFFICERS OF THE SOCIETY.

SECTION 1. There shall be annually elected, at the Stated Meeting in May, from among the members of this Society, a President, a First, a Second, a Third, and a Fourth Vice-President, a Treasurer, a Secretary, and an Assistant Secretary, who, with twelve Managers, whose election is hereinafter provided for, shall constitute the "Board of Officers." There shall be elected at the next meeting for the election of officers, twelve Managers, who shall divide themselves into four classes of equal numbers each. The first class shall serve for one year, the second class for two years, the third class for three years, and the fourth class for four years; and at each annual election, after that first next ensuing, there shall be elected three Managers for the term of four years, and such additional number, if any, as may be necessary to fill vacancies for the remainder of the terms of the Managers whose places they fill. No Manager shall be re-eligible until one year after the expiration of the term for which he shall have been last elected. There shall also be elected at each annual election of officers, two Chaplains, two Physicians, and two Consulting Physicians.

SECTION 2. The election shall be by ballot, and a plurality of votes shall constitute a choice.

SECTION 3. The officers so elected shall be installed and shall enter upon the duties of their respective offices at the Stated Meeting immediately preceding the anniversary meeting.

SECTION 4. The President shall, when he is present, preside at all meetings of the Society, preserve order, put the question and declare the decision. He, in conjunction with one of the Vice-Presidents, may call special meetings of the Society when they shall judge proper, and he shall call them when required by the Board of Officers, or when requested in writing by any nine members, specifying in such request the object for which such meeting is desired. He shall appoint the time and place of all meetings, and shall sign orders on the Treasurer from the Board of Officers.

SECTION 5. The Vice-Presidents shall assist the President in presiding at the meetings. The duties specified in the preceding section shall, in case of inability to act of the President, by reason of his absence or sickness, devolve on the First Vice-President; and in the absence or sickness of both, on the Second Vice-President; and so on, according to rank; only that, in regard to signing orders on the Treasurer, each shall have equal powers with the President.

SECTION 6. The Managers shall constitute a Board for dispensing the Society's bounty, agreeably to the regulations and restrictions prescribed in this Constitution, or by the laws and resolves of this Society; and for this purpose, they shall meet at least once a month in Summer, and twice a month in Winter, and five shall be necessary to form a quorum. At their meetings only they shall decide on the application of claimants, and, if a majority of those present shall consent to grant relief, they shall recommend them, in writing, to the President and Vice-Presidents, either of whom is authorized to draw on the Treasurer for the sum specified in the recommendation of the Managers; provided that no more than twelve dollars be given to any one person in one year, except as provided in Article VI., Section 1 of this Constitution, or unless otherwise determined at a meeting of the Society; and provided; also, that the whole sum thus dispensed by the Managers and by the Society in one year, do not exceed the revenue of the Society for that year arising from the interest on the Permanent Fund (hereafter mentioned) and from the annual dues. The Managers shall likewise recommend to the attention of the Chaplains and Physicians such persons as they suppose might be benefited by their assistance.

SECTION 7. The Treasurer shall have the custody of the money and other property of the Society. He shall keep regular accounts of all receipts and disbursements, in suitable books provided for that purpose, which shall be open at all reasonable times to the inspection of the members. He shall keep an account of the fees and dues that accrue, and shall appoint a proper and discreet person to collect the same, and, shall allow such person a reasonable compensation therefor. He shall, at least once in every three months, report to the Board of Officers the names of the members whose dues remain unpaid, and the amount they respectively owe, specifying those whose dues have been in arrears more than a year. He shall preserve vouchers for all disbursements. He shall enter on his books each sum paid by him in consequence of the recommendation of the Board of Managers, the name of the President or Vice-President who signed the order, and the name of the person to whom the money was paid. He shall, at each Stated Meeting, present an abstract of his accounts, showing the sum received and expended since the last Stated Meeting of the Society; and likewise the whole amount received and expended since the previous anniversary festival, specifying the amount of the Permanent Fund, and amount of cash on hand, and what may become due before the next meeting of the Society, that they may, if they think proper, take order for the disposition thereof.

Section 8. The Secretary shall have the custody of all the records and journals of the Society and shall make a regular entry of all the proceedings at each meeting. He shall keep a roll of the members. He shall give notice through the post office or letter-delivery companies of all meetings, whether stated or special. He shall, under the direction of the Board of Officers, erase from the list of members the names of all such persons as shall, by the terms of the Constitution, have forfeited their title to membership, making a report thereof at the next meeting of the Society.

Section 9. In the absence of the Secretary, the duties specified by the last preceding section shall devolve on the Assistant Secretary, whose duty it shall be to assist the Secretary when present.

Section 10. The Chaplains shall perform the religious duties at the meetings of the Society, and shall by their counsel and advice promote harmony and good-will among the members. They shall also visit such sick and distressed persons as may be recommended to their attention by the Managers.

Section 11. The Physicians shall give advice and assistance to such sick or maimed persons as may be committed to their care by the Managers.

SECTION 12. In case of the death, resignation or removal of any of the officers before the end of the year or term for which they were elected, the Society may, at any subsequent meeting, choose others in their room, in the mode prescribed in Section 2 of this article, to serve for the remainder of the term for which such officers were elected.

SECTION 13. The Board of Officers shall meet regularly on the Monday preceding each Stated Meeting. Special meetings may be called by the Secretary, under the direction of the President, or of the Vice-President, acting in his stead, or of any three members of the Board of Officers. In addition to the duties conferred upon the Board by this Constitution, they shall likewise execute all such business as may from time to time be committed to them by any law or resolve of the Society; and they shall report their proceedings at every Stated Meeting of the Society. The presence of at least seven members shall be necessary for the transaction of business. They may, in their discretion, appoint a Sergeant-at-Arms, with such powers, and subject to such duties, as they may deem proper; and may allow him such compensation as they shall think reasonable.

ARTICLE IV.

OF COMMITTEES

SECTION 1. The Committee of Finance shall consist of the President, the Vice-Presidents, and Treasurer; the President shall be Chairman of the Committee. They shall have the management of the Permanent Fund, and shall direct its investment. All funds and money belonging to the Society shall stand in the name of "The Saint Nicholas Society of the City of New York." The Committee shall, when moneys are to be disbursed from the Permanent Fund, or any amount transferred therefrom by resolution of the Society, give an order, in writing, to the Treasurer, for such disbursement or transfer. They shall have power to sell out stocks or other securities belonging to the Society, and to reinvest the same. They shall report their proceedings at each Stated Meeting.

SECTION 2. There shall be appointed annually, at the meeting when the officers of the Society are elected, a Committee of Accounts, consisting of five members, not being officers, whose duty it shall be to examine the books and accounts and vouchers of the Treasurer, and to examine the proceedings of the Committee of Finance and of the Managers, and to report thereon to the Society at its next meeting.

SECTION 3. There shall be appointed annually, at the meeting when the officers of the Society are elected, a Committee of Installment, consisting of two members, who shall, on the anniversary festival, present and install the officers elected for the ensuing year.

SECTION 4. There shall be elected by the Society (by ballot), at the next meeting when the officers are elected, a Committee of Six as Stewards of the Society, whose duty it shall be to take charge of the general detail of the anniversary celebration, as shall be prescribed by the By-Laws, or by a resolution of the Society, who shall divide themselves into three classes of equal numbers each. The first class shall serve for one year, the second class for two years, and the third class for three years; and at each annual election thereafter there shall be elected two members of said Committee for the term of three years, and such additional number, if any, as may be necessary to fill vacancies for the remainder of the terms of the members whose places they fill. Pending such election the President shall have power to fill vacancies ad interim.

No member elected to this Committee shall be re-eligible until one year after the expiration of the term for which he shall have been last elected.

SECTION 5. All Committees (special as well as standing) whose appointment is not otherwise directed by the Constitution or By-Laws, or a resolution of the Society, shall be nominated by the presiding officer and confirmed by the Society.

ARTICLE V.

OF THE FUNDS.

SECTION 1. All sums received as initiation fees, donations, bequests, etc., and all sums paid by life members, shall be invested under the direction of the Committee of Finance as a Permanent Fund, to be loaned out at interest, or invested in stocks or public funds. And if at any time the interest arising from the Permanent Fund, together with the amount received from the annual dues, be more than the exigencies of the poor and the current expenses of the Society require, the surplus shall be carried to the Permanent Fund. In like manner, if the Stewards shall at any time receive more money than is required for the expenses of the anniversary festival, the surplus shall be paid over to the Treasurer, and be carried to the Permanent Fund.

SECTION 2. No money shall be transferred from the Permanent Fund except by a resolution of the Society at a Stated Meeting, at which there shall be present at least one hundred members, three-fourths of whom shall vote in favor of such resolution.

SECTION 3. All such sums as arise from the annual dues of members, and from the interest or income of the Permanent Fund, shall constitute a fund, to be called the Charity and Expense Fund, from which all the debts of the Society shall be paid and the charities disbursed. But if the said fund shall exceed the amount of expenses and of charities distributed, the surplus shall be annually carried to the Permanent Fund, according to the provisions of Section 1 of this article of the Constitution.

ARTICLE VI.

OF THE PERSONS TO WHOM CHARITABLE DONATIONS MAY BE MADE.

SECTION 1. The widow and children of a deceased member shall (if so determined by the Board of Managers) be entitled for five successive years to an annuity from the funds of the Society, to the full amount of the moneys which the deceased member shall have actually paid into the Treasury, payable in such a manner, and to such persons, as the said Board of Managers shall direct; provided, however, that said annuity shall in no case be paid to a widow of a member after she shall have married again, nor to children after they shall have attained the age of fourteen years.

SECTION 2. None shall be objects of the Society's bounty (except as provided in the preceding section) but such members thereof as shall become indigent, and children of a member of this Society.

ARTICLE VII.

MEETINGS.

SECTION 1. The Society shall hold three Stated Meetings in each year, on such days as shall be determined by the By-Laws.

SECTION 2. Special meetings may be called as provided in Section 4, Article III, of this Constitution. Special meetings shall be competent for the transaction of any business which may come before them, except questions touching a transfer of the Permanent Fund of the Society, and except also such other business as by this Constitution, or the By-Laws, may be confined to Stated Meetings.

SECTION 3. As the benevolent and charitable objects of this Society will be greatly promoted by a social intercourse among its members, the Society shall celebrate its anniversary by a dinner, on the 6th day of December in each year, unless that day fall on Sunday, in which case the anniversary shall be held on the following day, and the Society may at any Stated Meeting provide for other festivities.

SECTION 4. All the meetings of the Society shall be held at such hour and place as the President, or person acting as President for the time being, shall appoint.

SECTION 5. A quorum for the dispatch of business, except in cases where a larger number may be required for any special act, by any article of the Constitution, shall consist of such number of members as shall be prescribed by the By-Laws; but any number of members present at the time appointed for a Stated Meeting, may from time to time adjourn such Stated Meeting.

ARTICLE VIII.

OF INSIGNIA.

SECTION 1. The only recognized insignia of the members of the Society shall consist of a badge, pendant from a ribbon, of the following description: The badge shall be ¾ inch in length and width, made of gold or of silver gilt; the obverse—the Arms upon the Seal of the Society, stamped in relief, being in substance the old Arms of the City of New York; the reverse—plain, with the number of the badge engraved upon it. The ribbon shall be orange, ribbed and watered, 1⅜ inches in width and 1 inch in displayed length, suspended from a gold or silver gilt bar ¼ inch in depth and 1 7/16 inches in breadth, bearing the words "St. Nicholas" in block letters, in relief.

SECTION 2. The insignia shall be worn only on the left breast, at meetings and celebrations of the Society, or by members when acting officially to represent the Society, and shall not be worn as an ornament or article of jewelry.

SECTION 3. The Treasurer shall procure and issue the insignia to members, and shall keep a record thereof. No member shall receive more than one badge unless to replace one which has been lost or destroyed.

SECTION 4. The insignia to be worn by the President at celebrations of the Society shall be the badge adopted by the Society November 27th, 1835, consisting of a silver medal bearing the Arms above described, suspended from a collar; and, upon other occasions, a medal of gilt and blue enamel bearing the Arms of the Society; or a badge similar to that of the members of the Society, but of larger size, pendant from an orange ribbon.

SECTION 5. The insignia worn by the Stewards shall be a badge similar to that of members, but of larger size, pendant from an orange ribbon worn close about the neck.

ARTICLE IX.

ON THE MODE OF ALTERING THE CONSTITUTION OF THE SOCIETY.

SECTION 1. No alteration, repeal or amendment of any part of this Constitution shall take place unless the proposition for such alteration, repeal or amendment, shall have been made at a previous Stated Meeting; and such proposition shall not take effect unless there are present at least forty members, three-fourths of whom shall vote in the affirmative, and the votes on such question shall be recorded by the Secretary, if required by five members present.

SECTION 2. The By-Laws of this Society may be altered, repealed or amended, either at a Stated Meeting or at a special meeting, when called for the object of making such alteration, such object being expressed in the notice of said special meeting. The proposition for such alteration, repeal or amendment, must have been made at a previous meeting.

BY-LAWS

SECTION 1. The Stated Meetings of this Society shall be held on the first Thursday in March, May, and November, in each year, except when such Thursdays are public holidays, in which case the meeting shall be held on the following day.

SECTION 2. The Secretary shall give at least two days' notice through the post office or letter-delivery companies of the time and place of all meetings, whether special or stated.

SECTION 3. At special meetings, the consent of two-thirds of the members present shall be necessary to constitute a vote.

SECTION 4. Fifteen members shall be necessary to constitute a quorum, except in cases where a larger number may be required by the Constitution or By-Laws, for any special act.

SECTION 5. At each meeting of the Society, immediately after the presiding officer shall have taken the Chair, the minutes of the previous meeting shall be read by the Secretary, and passed upon by the Society; the next business in order shall be reports of officers and committees; then proposals of candidates.

SECTION 6. Any member having observations to make, or resolutions to propose, shall rise in his place and address the Chair; and all resolutions shall be submitted in writing and handed to the Secretary, and shall be by him entered on the minutes.

SECTION 7. The Secretary shall keep a Proposal Book wherein the proposer or seconder of a candidate shall record in writing under his own signature the statements required in the first paragraph of Section 2, Article II., of the Constitution, and no name shall be considered in nomination unless the proposal be submitted in the manner required by this Section of the By-Laws.

SECTION 8. The Secretary may, at the written request of members, enter their names in the Proposal Book as the proposers or seconders of candidates, and further comply with the terms of Section 7 of the By-Laws, provided that the statements required by the first paragraph of Section 2, Article II., of the Constitution shall appear in the letters proposing or seconding a candidate. The Proposal Book to be open to inspection at the offices of the Society that members may state any facts within their knowledge in regard to the qualifications of candidates.

SECTION 9. The Stewards shall select the place of meeting for, and shall provide the anniversary dinner; shall stipulate the price, and issue tickets therefor; and in conjunction with the President and Vice-Presidents, shall prepare the toasts, and sign and give invitation cards to the dinner.

SECTION 10. No topic connected with the party politics of the day shall ever be discussed at the meetings of this Society.

The undersigned, Members of The St. Nicholas Society of the City of Newyork, do hereby subscribe to, and agree to support the foregoing Constitution
